Abstract: The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 12-week resistance training program on the muscle strength and endurance of young adults. The study was conducted in a laboratory setting. The participants were 20 young adults (10 males and 10 females) who were randomly assigned to either a resistance training group or a control group. The resistance training group performed a 12-week program of resistance training, while the control group did not. The muscle strength and endurance of the participants were measured at the beginning and end of the 12-week period. The results of the study showed that the resistance training group had significantly greater muscle strength and endurance than the control group at the end of the 12-week period. The findings of this study suggest that a 12-week resistance training program can effectively improve muscle strength and endurance in young adults.
