La Conversion d'Hermann le Juif. Autobiographie, histoire et fiction Jean-Claude

Schmitt,2014-10-25T00:00:00+02:00 Vers le milieu du XIIe siècle un juif originaire de Cologne converti au christianisme et devenu prêtre Cappenberg en Westphalie écrit en latin sous le nom d'Hermann l'ancien juif le récit de sa conversion Opusculum de conversione sua Cette autobiographie est l'une des toutes premières en Occident depuis les Confessions de saint Augustin Ce texte singulier divise les historiens les uns y voyant le récit vrai d'un authentique juif converti les autres une pure fiction forgée par des clercs chrétiens Jean Claude Schmitt montre que la question est mal posée ce récit la première personne est la fois vrai et fictif et il est vain de lui chercher un auteur fictif ce juif converti Hermann a bien pu exister et contribuer la mise par écrit de sa propre histoire mais l'Opusculum n'en est pas moins une œuvre collective peut-être destinée à illustrer le rayonnement de l'abbaye prémontrée de Cappenberg Plutôt que de se battre sur une question d'attribution mieux vaut-il placer les questions et interroger le contenu du texte pour en comprendre les significations dans la société et la culture de l'époque Qu'en est-il alors de l'autobiographie et de la subjectivité de la fonction des récits dans les cultures juive et chrétienne de la légende des images religieuses dans un cadre monothéiste de la conversion individuelle et collective du nom et de l'identité Simultanément l'auteur saisit l'occasion des débats suscités par l'Opusculum pour s'interroger plus fondamentalement sur les manières dont les historiens pensent et écrivent l'histoire Ainsi non seulement l'étude de cas est elle guidée par une ample problématique mais elle se double tout au long de la démonstration d'une mise en question critique du travail de l'historien faisant de ce livre une leçon de méthode

Jewish/Christian/Queer Frederick Roden,2016-05-06 At a time when major branches of Judaism and most Christian denominations are addressing the relationship between religion and homosexuality Jewish Christian Queer offers a unique examination of the similarities between the queer intersections of Judaism and Christianity and the queer intersections of the homosexual and the religious This volume investigates three forms of queerness the rhetorical theological and the discursive dissonance at the meeting points between Christianity and Judaism the crossroads of the religious and the homosexual and the intersections of these two forms of queerness namely where the religiously queer of Jewish and Christian speech intersects with the sexually queer of religiously identified homosexual discourse Including essays on literature and literary theory Christian theology Biblical Rabbinic and Jewish studies queer theory architecture Freud gay and lesbian studies and history Jewish Christian Queer will have a truly interdisciplinary appeal Dark Mirror Sara Lipton,2014-11-04 In Dark Mirror Sara Lipton offers a fascinating examination of the emergence of anti Semitic iconography in the Middle Ages The straggly beard the hooked nose the bag of coins and gaudy apparel the religious artists of medieval Christendom had no shortage of virulent symbols for identifying Jews Yet hateful as these depictions were the story they tell is not as simple as it first appears Drawing on a wide range of primary sources Lipton argues that these visual stereotypes were neither an inevitable outgrowth of Christian theology nor a simple reflection of medieval prejudices Instead she maps out the complex relationship between medieval Christians religious ideas social experience and developing artistic practices that drove their depiction of Jews from benign if exoticized figures connoting ancient wisdom to increasingly vicious portrayals inspired by and designed to provoke fear and hostility At the heart of this lushly illustrated and meticulously researched work are questions that have occupied scholars for ages why did Jews become such powerful and poisonous symbols in medieval art Why were Jews associated with certain objects symbols actions and deficiencies And what were the effects of such portrayals not only in medieval society but throughout Western history What we find is that the image of the Jew in medieval art was not a portrait of actual neighbors or even imagined others but a cloudy glass into which Christendom gazed to find a distorted phantasmagoric rendering of itself L'histoire ,2003 Hildegard of Bingen and Her Gospel Homilies Beverly Mayne Kienzle,2009 Hildegard of Bingen 1098 1179 the only medieval woman known to have authored systematic works of exegesis composed fifty eight little studied Expositiones euangeliorum homilies on twenty seven Gospel passages Hildegard described her divine charge to restore the tottering faith of her era through the revelation of hidden mysteries in the Scriptures She was to continue the exegetical tradition of the Fathers and to construct moral fortifications with the words of Scripture in order to defend her sisters against the forces of evil Hildegard of Bingen and her Gospel Homilies constitutes the first in depth study of Hildegard s Expositiones and of her exegesis preaching and use of sources It explores the Expositiones in the context of Hildegard s intellectual and cultural milieu and underscores the central role of biblical interpretation in the seer s works Furthermore this book re examines Hildegard s self depiction in the context of monastic education for women the magistra s exchange with her mentors and friends and her rich use of divine voice to empower her own expression This is a new exciting and erudite study on one of the most influential female mystics Entre histoire et épopée Laurent Macé,2006 Internationale Bibliographie der Rezensionen wissenschaftlicher Literatur ,2003 Jewish Conversion from the Sixth Through the Twelfth Century Jessie Sherwood,2006 Conversions between Judaism and Christianity were rare during much of the Middle Ages yet they were an important facet of relations between Jews and Christians This dissertation examines the changing dynamics of Jewish conversion from the sixth through the twelfth century Among the issues under discussion are forcible baptism religious identity returning converts and converts ability to integrate into Christian society and also analyzes converts texts This thesis makes three related arguments It postulates that religious identity remained plastic throughout the early Middle Ages allowing converts to integrate into their new communities but became more rigid after the late eleventh century Secondly it argues that Christian attitudes toward converts who returned to Judaism grew less tolerant during the twelfth century Thirdly it asserts that using coercion to baptize Jews during the tenth and eleventh centuries became more acceptable in the tenth and eleventh centuries Where possible it also explores converts experiences of and explanations for conversion in the context of these changes arguing that there is often a gap between converts accounts and Christian expectations The first chapter studies the precedents left from the early Middle Ages by surveying the legislation governing and the early accounts of conversion The second chapter investigates the plasticity of religious identity in the tenth and eleventh centuries by examining the extant references to converts while the third chapter deals with the accounts of compulsory baptism from the tenth and eleventh century The fourth chapter surveys twelfth century converts and the expectations of them articulated in Christian conversion stories The fifth chapter turns to the texts left by three twelfth century converts and their understandings of conversion The sixth chapter addresses the question of adolescent conversion revising the current assumption that most Jewish converts were adolescent males Finally the seventh chapter examines the changing attitudes toward and treatment of Jewish converts and returning converts in the twelfth century

Rewriting the Middle Ages in the Twentieth Century Jaume Aurell i Cardona, Francisco Crosas López, 2005 Rewriting the Middle Ages in the Twentieth Century offers analytical introductions to the biographical and academic trajectories as well as the scholarly contributions of the most important medievalists of the 20th century privileging the contexts in which their influential texts in modern medieval studies were articulated and their effect on subsequent approaches to the field The volume pays tribute to the medievalists historians philologists literary critics philosophers historians of art and science and theologians whose work effectively forged contemporary academics and acknowledges a debt of gratitude for the trail they blazed in the twentieth century An introductory essay provides a comprehensive examination of the development of historiographical perspectives on medieval studies as shaped by the subjects of the volume contextualizing the individual chapters and offering a critical reconsideration of the manifold ways in which medievalism has been inscribed. The chapters in the book develop from interdisciplinary and transversal strategies which reflect the kind of originaive work enacted by both the subjects of the volume and the scholars who write about them. The contributors include renowned international medievalists and historiographers as Martin Aurell, Paul Freedman, Natalie Fryde, Alessandro Ghisalberti, Massimo Mastrogregori, Michael McVaugh, Jean Calude Schmitt and Martin Thurner. A concluding essay summarizes the place of the medievalists in relation to their professional identity to the time in which they worked and to the national spaces that marked their scholarly production. Among the medievalists studied are the leading exponents of the influential French historical school of the Annales: Marc Bloch, Jacques Le Goff and Georges Duby; representatives from the highest philosophical tradition including Raymond Klibansky, Albert Zimmermann and Clemens Baeumker; economic and trade historian Roberto Sabatino Lopez; historians of political thought like Ernst Kantorowicz; exponents from the classical school of legal and institutional history such as Francois Louis Ganshof and Frederic William Maitland; pioneering cultural historian Charles Homer Haskins; historians of theology and Christian philosophy Etienne Gilson and Marie Dominique Chenu; members of the Spanish historical and philological school that include Ramon Menendez Pidal, Rafael Lapesa and Claudio Sanchez de Albornoz; and in Catalonia Ferran Soldevila; and finally from lesser known but equally fascinating fields of medieval studies like the science historian Pierre Duhem and the music historian Ugo Sesini.

Frontiers in the Middle Ages Fédération internationale des instituts d'études médiévales, 2006. The first uses of the term frontiere in thirteenth and fourteenth century French were military, referring to the first line of troops in a battle. In architecture it meant the front of a building and at the end of the fourteenth century it was first used as a geographical term in Spain, specifically about the divide between the Christians and the Muslims. More than obstacles, medieval frontiers, whether geographical, political, military, intellectual or artistic, seem to have been bridges and points of contact. Frontiers was the theme of the Third European Congress of Medieval Studies, organised by the FIDEM in Jyväskylä, Finland, in 2003. True to the nature of the FIDEM, it was highly interdisciplinary, bringing together scholars from all over the world, addressing problems ranging from Byzantine administration to Icelandic vernacular scribal culture during a week of extraordinary intellectual excitement. This volume brings together forty-four contributions by specialists of history, history of ideas, medieval philosophy, philology, linguistics, literature as well as manuscript and archival studies.
