Explores how and why people manipulated borders in the early modern Atlantic world Claiming Land Claiming Water shares what historians and geographers wish readers knew about maps and borders before during and after the founding of the United States The essays collected in this volume model how people can learn to interpret maps as arguments rather than as historical facts and to read maps for evidence of people and places that were elided renamed or destroyed Contributors travel through the sixteenth seventeenth eighteenth and nineteenth centuries in the place known by many names the Atlantic World the North American continent borderlands and homelands Onto this place where people exercised power over space by forging relationships colonizers came and imagined borders onto maps Featuring reproductions of twenty historical maps the book takes readers through this era of immense disruption to teach them strategies for reading and interpreting these maps critically Essays attend carefully to water alongside land and land alongside water in search of new interpretive avenues that reframe what we know about space control and sovereignty By using historical examples of people farmers fishers hunters religious leaders colonial projectors traders sailors soldiers diplomats and cartographers it becomes possible to resist the temptation to impose modern geographical constructs backwards onto the histories we read teach and write Claiming Land Claiming Water investigates why some of these people imagined and made claims to bounded space and how and why other people confounded and challenged those claims Contributors Sarah Chute Edward G Gray Kim M Gruenwald
