

instances of actual confusion.” (citation omitted). Indeed, surveys are frequently analyzed under the seventh DuPont factor.<sup>46</sup>

Petitioner’s survey was conducted by its expert witness, Dr. Roberts, and involved 276 respondents with the “primary objective to determine if [a likelihood of confusion] exists between the FOX and TRIFOX brand names.”<sup>47</sup> As discussed, supra, Dr. Roberts employed a survey methodology known as a “Squirt” survey, as opposed to an “Ever-Ready” survey, explaining his choice:<sup>48</sup>

the difference, as I mentioned when talking earlier, was that it’s only when the senior mark is easy -- we call “top-of-mind awareness.” And so, you know, Apple, Ford, Seventh Day Adventists, those are -- those are brands that people are familiar with and that lends itself to an Ever-Ready test. Without that kind of top-of-mind awareness, which Fox doesn’t have, then, the appropriate test would be a Squirt test.

<sup>46</sup> We also keep in mind Professor McCarthy’s viewpoint that “survey evidence is circumstantial, not direct, evidence of the likelihood of confusion. Surveys do not measure the degree of actual confusion by real consumers making mistaken purchases. Rather, surveys create an experimental environment from which we can get useful data from which to make informed inferences about the likelihood that actual confusion will take place.” 6 MCCARTHY ON TRADEMARKS AND UNFAIR COMPETITION § 32:184 (5th Ed.). In other words, a properly conducted survey is technically not showing real confusion in the marketplace but may be circumstantial evidence from which we may infer whether there exists a likelihood of actual confusion.

<sup>48</sup> 26 TTABVUE (Roberts Dep. 46:14-21). Dr. Roberts references the two types of surveys that are commonly employed in likelihood of confusion cases: an Eveready-style format, and a Squirt-style format – both so-named from decisions involving these types of surveys. The Eveready format involves showing participants the junior mark and asking them to name the company they think puts out the mark (and then why they think that or whether they can name any other products made by that brand) with the assumption that they are aware of the senior mark from prior experiences (i.e. the senior mark is strong). See Union Carbide Corp. v. Ever-Ready, Inc., 531 F.2d 366 (7th Cir. 1976). The second format used is the Squirt format, and involves presenting participants with both conflicting marks, without any assumption of familiarity with any of the marks. See SquirtCo v. Seven-Up Co., 628 F.2d 1086 (8th Cir. 1980).

Mike Goldsmith, 2012-09-27 Noise is a widely recognized problem and health concern in the modern world Given the importance of managing noise levels and developing suitable soundscapes in contexts such as industry schools or public spaces this is an area of active research for acousticians But noise in the sense of dissonance can also be used positively composers have employed it from Baroque music to Rock feedback medicine harnesses it to shatter kidney stones and treat cancer and even the military uses it in real and rumoured weapons Mike Goldsmith looks back at the long history of the battle between people and noise a battle that has changed our lives and moulded our societies He investigates how increasing noise levels relate to human progress from the clatter of wheels on cobbles to the sound of heavy machinery he explains how our scientific understanding of sound and hearing has developed and he looks at noise in nature including the remarkable ways in which some animals such as shrimps use noise as a weapon or to catch prey He concludes by turning to the future discussing the noise sources which are likely to dominate it and the ways in which new science and new ideas may change the way our future will sound Annual Report of the State Dairy Commissioner Iowa.
