1. Damage resulting directly—The rule should be applied by confining the damage to the actual physical injury to the property itself, not to consequential damages to the contents or anything else that happens to be on the property. The rule also does not extend to items on the property that are damaged by a passing vehicle or pedestrian, or to the loss of business, reputation or other intangible property.
2. Recovery—An act attempts to punish the act rather than to compensate the owner for actual damages. Rather than other recovery to which the owner is entitled.
3. Recklessness—When there is no evidence of negligence, the "reckless" language is not necessary. The language is included to make the owner liable for intentional or negligent damage.
4. Recovery limited—The owner is not to recover for the damage to the property itself, but for the loss of the contents or other items.
