Boas, 2016-03-04 How do presidential candidates in new democracies choose their campaign strategies and what strategies do they adopt In contrast to the claim that campaigns around the world are becoming more similar to one another Taylor Boas argues that new democracies are likely to develop nationally specific approaches to electioneering through a process called success contagion The theory of success contagion holds that the first elected president to complete a successful term in office establishes a national model of campaign strategy that other candidates will adopt in the future He develops this argument for the cases of Chile Brazil and Peru drawing on interviews with campaign strategists and content analysis of candidates television advertising from the 1980s through 2011 The author concludes by testing the argument in ten other new democracies around the world demonstrating substantial support for the theory Lemon-Aid New and Used Cars and Trucks 2007-2017 Phil Edmonston, 2017-03-11 Steers buyers through the the confusion and anxiety of new and used vehicle purchases like no other car and truck book on the market Dr Phil along with George Iny and the Editors of the Automobile Protection Association pull no punches Children's Books in Print, 2007, 2006 The Poetics and Politics of Diaspora Jerome C.
