Global Monitoring Report International Monetary Fund, 2012-04-25 What has been the impact of yet another food price spike on developing countries ability to make progress toward the Millennium Development Goals MDGs How many poor people have been prevented from lifting themselves out of poverty How many people and how many children have seen their personal growth and development permanently harmed because their families could not afford to buy food Finally what can countries do to respond to higher and more volatile food prices Global Monitoring Report 2012 Food Prices Nutrition and the Millennium Development Goals examines these questions It summarizes the effects of food prices on several MDGs stressing that recent food price spikes have prevented millions of households from escaping extreme poverty The report advocates using agricultural policy to orchestrate a supply response deploying social safety nets to improve resilience strengthening nutritional policy to manage the implications of early childhood development and implementing trade policy to improve access to food markets reduce volatility and induce productivity gains The report acknowledges that one size does not fit all and that the sequencing and prioritization of various policy initiatives depend critically on the initial situation a country or region finds itself in It also discusses support by the international community The world has met two global MDG targets well before the 2015 deadline Estimates based on preliminary surveys indicate that the share of people living in extreme poverty in 2010 was half what it was in 1990 The world has also halved the share of people with no safe drinking water The goal of gender parity in primary and secondary education is on track to be met in 2015 and the goal of ensuring that children everywhere boys and girls alike are able to complete primary school is nearly on track But the MDGs closely linked to food and nutrition particularly those that aim to reduce child and maternal mortality are lagging Global Monitoring Report 2012 was prepared jointly by the World Bank and the International Monetary Fund with consultations and collaborations with regional development banks and other multilateral partners countries were hit particularly hard during 2009 global Gross Domestic Product GDP contracted for the first time since Second World War The financial crisis and the ensuing economic downturn the worst since the Great Depression in the 1930s went hand in hand with tightening of credit markets bank failures firm closures and high demand for social safety nets This report The jobs crisis household and Government responses to the great recession in Eastern Europe and Central Asia brings together evidence that World Bank teams have collected on the impact of the crisis on households and families in Eastern Europe and Central Asia This report shows how the crisis was felt by Eastern European and Central Asian households Not only did unemployment rise sharply but it also lasted longer The report also shows that the pain of the recession was broader with workers taking home smaller paychecks as firms offered lower wage rates and fewer hours of work to their workers The jobs crisis finds that households used a variety of ways to cope with the crisis The jobs crisis presents an account of how governments reacted to the crisis through social policy reforms and initiatives and how such responses could be improved in the future Unemployment insurance benefits played a particularly important cushioning role but coverage of the unemployed tended to be limited Bangladesh Economic Review ,2011
