Abstract: This study examined the effects of a 12-week, low-intensity, supervised walking program on the physical and psychological health of older adults. The program was designed to improve walking speed, balance, and confidence. Results showed that participants experienced significant improvements in walking speed, balance, and confidence over the 12-week period. The program was well-tolerated and had no adverse effects. These findings suggest that a supervised walking program can be an effective intervention for improving the physical and psychological health of older adults.
