Federico Dal Bo, 2024-09-23 Federico Dal Bo examines the design of early Hebrew books from the late fifteenth and sixteenth centuries focusing not only on the words in these early books but also on how they were arranged on the page He follows in the tradition of scholars such as Christopher de Hamel Marvin J Heller and David Stern who have explored the importance of these Hebrew books in influencing Jewish learning and attracting the interest of Christians The author discusses important prints such as the first Talmud and rabbinical bibles which marked a shift from being for Jewish readers only to being for both Jews and Christians The collaboration between Jewish editors and Christian printers changed the way these books looked and the audience for whom they were intended At first these early prints copied the style of handwritten Hebrew manuscripts The simple layout could be difficult to read especially for long books like the Bible or Talmud But over time influenced by the humanism of the Italian Renaissance the layout became more complex The book also looks at how the layout changed from full page commentaries to a more complicated design in which the main text and commentaries shared the same page This shift challenged the idea of who was the primary author and emphasized the role of editors The layout with the main text in the center and the commentaries on the sides created a kind of unwritten rule for how to read religious texts Dal Bo s study also includes new information about a 1553 trial in which the Talmud was burned Overall it explores how the layout of these early Hebrew books shaped cultural power and influenced how people read Diversity and

Difference in Rabbinic Judaism explores the rhythms of time that animated the rabbinic world of late antiquity revealing how rabbis conceptualized time as a way of constructing difference between themselves and imperial Rome Jews and Christians men and women and human and divine In each chapter Sarit Kattan Gribetz explores a unique aspect of rabbinic discourse on time She shows how the ancient rabbinic texts artfully subvert Roman imperialism by offering rabbinic time as an alternative to Roman time She examines rabbinic discourse about the Sabbath demonstrating how the weekly day of rest marked Jewish time from Christian time Gribetz looks at gendered daily rituals showing how rabbis created men s time and women s time by mandating certain rituals for men and others for women She delves into rabbinic writings that reflect on how God spends time and how God s use of time relates to human beings merging divine time with human time Finally she
