

Test Bank for Leadership Roles and Management Functions in Nursing: Theory and Application, 11th Edition Carol J. Huston 2024 chapter 1

Chapter 1, Decision Making, Problem Solving, Critical Thinking, and Clinical Reasoning: Requisites for Successful Leadership and Management

1. A nurse is applying a decision-making process to a clinical challenge. When applying this process, the nurse must:
 - a. analyze the root causes of a situation.
 - b. begin by solving the underlying problem.
 - c. choose between different courses of action.
 - d. prioritize the maximum good for the maximum number of people.

ANS: C

Feedback: Decision making is a complex, cognitive process often defined as choosing a particular course of action. Problem solving is part of decision making and is a systematic process that focuses on analyzing a difficult situation. It is not always realistic for the nurse to solve each of the problems contributing to a larger challenge, especially at the beginning of the decision-making process. The nurse often lacks the time, information, or resources to analyze the root causes of a situation. Many times, the nurse makes a decision that benefits the largest number of people, but this is not always feasible or desirable.

2. A nurse is applying the traditional problem-solving model when mediating a conflict between two colleagues. When applying this model, the nurse should prioritize what task?
 - a. Identifying the root cause of the conflict
 - b. Implementing a solution as quickly as possible
 - c. Eliciting input from other nurses
 - d. Encouraging each nurse to reflect on their actions

ANS: A

Feedback: The traditional problem-solving model attempts to identify the root problem in situations, a task that requires much time and energy. Efficiency is desirable, but trying to implement a solution as quickly as possible can result in a hasty and incorrect solution. Outside input may or may not be necessary; this varies with each individual problem. Reflective thinking is always beneficial, but this is not a specific component of the traditional problem-solving model.
