Drug Discovery Robert A. Maxwell, Shohreh B. Eckhardt, 2012-12-06 This treatise had its origins in the authors strong opinion that the discovery of new drugs especially of innovative therapeutic agents really does not happen as a spontaneous sequel to investigative research no matter how penetrating such research may be Rather it seemed to us that the discovery of innovative therapeutic agents was a very active process existing in and of itself and demanding full attention it was not simply a passive dependent by process of investigative research And yet many researchers some close confreres of the authors others more distant believed otherwise We felt that their view reflected unrealistic thinking and that reality probably lay closer to what Beyer maintained We are taught to believe that if we can understand a disease it should be easy enough to figure out say the molecular configuration of a definitive receptor mechanism somewhere along the line and to design a specific drug And so we start out to understand the disease but never get around to doing much about therapy The authors very soon realized that there was essentially no quantitative information available on just where and how innovative therapeutic agents were discovered There were only anecdotal accounts and these were able to be selected and presented in ways that could be used to defend any point of view Pharmacy and the U.S. Health Care System, Third Edition

Clinical Pharmacology in Athletic Training Michelle Cleary, Tom Abdenour, Mike Pavlovich, 2021-10-12 Athletic trainers have a responsibility to provide high quality pharmaceutical care while meeting both legal and ethical requirements. Clinical Pharmacology in Athletic Training empowers athletic trainers with a functional understanding of pharmacology that enables them to formulate a treatment plan intended to mitigate disease and improve the overall health of their patients. This text incorporates the most up to date content from the 2020 Commission on Accreditation of Athletic Training Education (CAATE) standards and it emphasizes interprofessional practice to enable future and current athletic trainers to collaborate with other health professionals in a manner that optimizes the quality of care. Clinical Pharmacology in Athletic Training begins by addressing drug legislation and the legal aspects of the athletic trainer's role in sport medication. The text provides an overview of pharmacokinetics and pharmacodynamics with an emphasis on concepts relevant to clinical practice. Students are introduced to the generic and brand names, general classifications, and appropriate administration of drugs and are guided toward appropriate online reference materials. Part II of this text describes common medications for pain, inflammation, and infections. Part III includes medications for specific conditions including respiratory, cardiovascular, gastrointestinal, neurological, gynecological, and mental health conditions. The text also includes current information on opioid analgesics, cannabis, and cannabinoid based medications. Clinical Pharmacology in Athletic Training teaches students to administer appropriate pharmacological agents for the management of the patient's condition. The information includes indications, contraindications, dosing, interactions, and adverse reactions. The following features are included to aid in the learning process: Chapter objectives set the stage for the main topics covered in the chapter; Key terms are boldfaced to indicate terms of special importance and a glossary of definitions is included at the back of the book; Red Flag sidebars highlight warnings and precautions for certain medications or medicolegal issues; Evidence in Pharmacology sidebars highlight recent research regarding medications; Clinical Application sidebars present real life stories from the field of athletic training; Case studies highlight specific therapeutic medication applications and are accompanied by questions that prompt readers to think critically about the issues presented; Quick reference drug tables describe medication types, generic and brand names, pronunciations, common indications, and other special considerations for the athletic trainer.
