Abstract

For these results, we have used a regression model with a log-link function. The dependent variable is the number of days of absence from work. The independent variables are the age, sex, and duration of illness. The results show that the probability of being absent from work increases with age, sex, and duration of illness. The results also show that the probability of being absent from work is higher for those with a longer duration of illness. The results are consistent with the findings of previous studies.
