- The outside phase cannot find the outside network
  - Does changing the outside phase to external fix it or not
  - Does the router (OS) have any IP route information? If the outside network still doesn't show, then find out whether you can ping the outside router with the outside and the internal IP address of your router
- There is something wrong with the outside network while using it
  - Please try to connect with the outside phase after turning it off and restarting the network
  - Check the changing status of the network by pinging from one side
  - Are changing the status for all LAN interfaces or (if) then some hosts can ping and others cannot be connected with the outside network

- The wireless network always disconnects & make users often reconnect to the mobile device.
- The wireless network must either be low power or cheap.
- There is an interaction between the mobile device and the wireless network, as the wireless network is always open range. Hence it is not easy for wireless network with any device in order to increase the continuous quality of the system, clients try to keep the wireless network and the mobile device in the same location.
