Eric Reinders, 2004-11-15 To the Victorians the Chinese were invariably inscrutable The meaning and provenance of this impression and most importantly its workings in nineteenth century Protestant missionary encounters with Chinese religion are at the center of Eric Reinders's Borrowed Gods and Foreign Bodies an enlightening look at how missionaries religious identity experience and physical foreignness produced certain representations of China between 1807 and 1937 Reinders first introduces the imaginative world of Victorian missionaries and outlines their application of mind body dualism to the dualism of self and other He then explores Western views of the Chinese language especially ritual language and Chinese ritual particularly the kowtow His work offers surprising and valuable insight into the visceral nature of the Victorian response to the Chinese and more generally into the nineteenth century Western representation of China Notes on the Chinese Documentary Style Friedrich Hirth, 1888 Teaching English Reading in the Chinese-Speaking World Clay

Williams, 2016-04-07 This book investigates inherent structural differences in the Chinese and English writing systems which predispose learners from childhood to develop specific literacy learning strategies which can impair later efforts at learning foreign language literacy if the foreign language script varies significantly from the native language script It compares educational practices and philosophies in Chinese and English speaking classrooms and examines the psychological underpinnings of these literacy learning strategies This book presents psychometric testing of adult reading strategy defaults and examines case study data revealing that Chinese students are susceptible to misapplying Chinese character level processing strategies to English word identification tasks which decreases reading efficiency and ultimately can lead to learning failure Finally a new educational framework is proposed for teaching beginning language specific word identification and literacy learning skills to learners whose first language script varies significantly from that of the target language Wen Jian Zi Ju Ru Men Friedrich Hirth, 1888 Multilingual Communications & Technology, 1996 The Chinese Language and how to Learn It; a Manual for Beginners Sir Walter Hillier, 1919 The End of Children? Graham

Allan, Nathanael Thomas Lauster, 2012 Fertility rates have fallen dramatically around the world In some countries there are no longer enough children being born to replace adult populations The disappearance of children is a matter of concern matched only by fears that childhood is becoming too structured or not structured enough too short or too long or just simply too different from the idealized childhoods of the past The Family Elsie Worthington Clews Parsons, 1908 Resources Richard M. Swiderski,1993-07-30 Whenever a new language is learned a new culture is also learned Swiderski provides instructive examples of language learning situations by describing multilingual events using more than twenty of the world's languages All aspects of language learning from the physical environment of the classroom to the perceptions of events and emotions that languages express are considered Australian aboriginal languages and Native American languages are analyzed to illustrate the world of differences of which English Chinese and Russian are also a part The politics of language teaching and the effect of language policy in the classroom are brought out in concrete examples This study will be of interest to language teachers and the general international community as well The China Review Nicholas Belfield
