Learning By Doing The Pla Trains At Home And Abroad:

Learning by Doing Army War College (U.S.). Strategic Studies Institute, 2012 Examines how the PLA learns by doing specifically through its exercises and noncombat operations at home and overseas and through key logistical and theoretical developments Learning by Doing Strategic Studies Institute, 2012-11 Learning by Doing Roy Kamphausen, David Lai, Travis Tanner, 2019-07-25 To better understand the PLA's ability to employ its developing capabilities in a variety of potential scenarios this year's workshop examined how the PLA learns by doing specifically through its exercises and noncombat operations at home and overseas and through key logistical and theoretical developments Key findings are 1 recent PLAN exercises and operations point to an increasing interest in developing expeditionary naval capabilities and a presence in distant seas suggesting that a move beyond the current near seas focus is both possible and an extension of existing efforts 2 PLA ground force exercises rather than aiming to intimidate others by demonstrating the ability to project power beyond China's borders focus on moving military power within China both to defend China's borders and perhaps as a prelude to military restructuring in which smaller but more mobile formations could replace larger and more static ones 3 through its participation in international military exercises as well as peacekeeping operations and humanitarian aid and disaster relief missions the PLA is gaining greater capabilities to deploy outside of China's borders for a variety of missions and 4 PLA operations are increasingly supported by a modern civilian integrated military logistics network though a lack of overseas bases continues to limit the effectiveness of this network as it pertains to overseas power projection capabilities

Learning by Doing: the PLA Trains at Home and Abroad - Report on the People's Liberation Army, Chinese Military, China's Navy, Armed Police Force, Exercises and Training, and Logistics Lessons U. S. Army, Strategic Studies Institute (SSI), Director of National Intelligence, Central Intelligence Agency (CIA), U. S. Government, 2017-09-20 The papers presented here are a timely and critical look at an evolving and expanding Chinese military and provide context for the changes we may yet see as the PLA continues to modernize As the USPACOM Commander I seek to better understand China in aspects that further our ability to find common areas of interest reduce miscalculation and contribute to regional stability Greater insight into the PLA is essential to this effort As the Chinese military matures grows and ventures farther from China's territory the regional and global implications for the United States and USPACOM as well as our allies and partners will be complex yet critical to our understanding of China's evolving international role and influence Therefore accurate and timely assessments of the changes taking place within the PLA are essential to understanding how the Chinese are matching military power with their broader policy aims The outstanding scholarship in this jointly sponsored study by SSI NBR and USPACOM is an important contribution toward this end The judgments in this volume provide unique and valuable insights on how the PLA is adapting its training to its perception of the security environment This does not just include how it is resourcing organizing and training its forces but also how the PLA thinks about warfare and the threats they currently face Through participation in international military exercises as well as peacekeeping operations PKO and humanitarian assistance and disaster relief HADR missions abroad the PLA is gaining greater experience in carrying out a broader spectrum of missions For example the lessons learned from counter piracy missions in the Gulf of Aden as well as internal transregional deployment exercises are impacting the way China responds to issues ranging from domestic natural disasters to cooperative security efforts requiring the projection and sustainment of military power beyond China s borders Monitoring these developments is not only key to our understanding of China s perceptions of the security environment but also to identifying opportunities to further develop cooperative capacity in the areas of nontraditional security threats a growing area of cooperation between our two militaries

U.S. Army Campaigns of the Civil War: The Civil War in the West, 1863 Andrew N. Morris, The Civil War in the West 1863 by Andrew N Morris is the latest addition to the Center of Military History s U S Army Campaigns of the Civil War series In 1863 Union and Confederate forces fought for control of Chattanooga a key rail center The Confederates were victorious at nearby Chickamauga in September However renewed fighting in Chattanooga that November provided Union troops a victory control of the city and drove the Confederates south into Georgia The Union success left its armies poised to invade the Deep South the following year

Protecting China's Interests Overseas Andrea Ghiselli, 2021-02-04 Protecting China s Interests Overseas provides a fascinating and new window into Chinese foreign and security policymaking In particular it shows how the management of non traditional security issues abroad led to the emergence of China s strategy to defend its interests overseas This book comes at a critical time as China has just inaugurated its first overseas military base in Djibouti thereby establishing a long term military presence outside Asia Based on a large number of Chinese primary sources the book examines how the main actors involved in the making and implementation of Chinese foreign policy understood the problem of protecting the assets and lives of Chinese companies and nationals abroad especially in North Africa and the Middle East and interacted with each other depending on their priorities preferences and organizational interests As the different chapters explore various aspects and dynamics within the Chinese foreign and security policy machine the analysis concludes that the emergence of China s strategy to defend its interests overseas was to a large extent crisis driven The evacuation of 36 000 Chinese nationals from Libya in 2011 was a critical moment in this process Henceforth significant efforts were made to strengthen the capabilities of and coordination between the different agencies under the control of the Chinese leadership especially the Chinese People's Liberation Army Consistently China's military presence abroad expanded and evolved over the years to stabilize the regions where the country's human and economic presence is most significant and to neutralize the non traditional security threats against it However Chinese policymakers still face important challenges and complex dilemmas on the path to formulate a sustainable policy towards this very difficult issue Protecting China's Interests Overseas also offers an opportunity to rethink how we study and understand Chinese foreign policymaking

Report to Congress of the U.S.-China Economic and Security Review Commission U.S.-China Economic and Security Review Commission,2016 Learning by Doing Roy Kamphausen,David Lai,Travis Tanner,2012 To better understand the PLA's ability to employ its developing capabilities in a variety of potential scenarios this volume examines how the PLA learns by doing specifically through its exercises and noncombat operations at home and overseas and through key logistical and theoretical developments Key findings are 1 recent PLA exercises and operations point to an increasing interest in developing expeditionary naval capabilities and a presence in distant seas suggesting that a move beyond the current near seas focus is both possible and an extension of existing efforts 2 PLA ground force exercises rather than aiming to intimidate others by demonstrating the ability to project power beyond China's borders focus on moving military power within China both to defend China's borders and perhaps as a prelude to military restructuring in which smaller but more mobile formations could replace larger and more static ones 3 through its participation in international military exercises as well as peacekeeping operations and humanitarian aid and disaster relief missions the PLA is gaining greater capabilities to deploy outside of China's borders for a variety of missions and 4 PLA operations are increasingly supported by a modern civilian integrated military logistics network though a lack of overseas bases continues to limit the effectiveness of this network as it pertains to overseas power projection capabilities

The PLA Beyond Borders Joel Wuthnow,2021 No longer confined to China's land territory or its near abroad the People's Liberation Army PLA is conducting increasingly complex operations farther and farther from China's continental borders Within Asia the PLA now regularly operates into the far reaches of the South China Sea and deep into the Western Pacific enforcing China's territorial claims and preparing to counter U S intervention in a regional conflict Beyond Asia the PLA is present on the ground at sea or in military exercises with foreign partners across the Indian Ocean and into the Middle East Africa and Europe Foreign militaries now regularly encounter the PLA whether in tense incidents or friendly contacts on their home turf and in the global commons Drawn from a 2019 conference jointly organized by NDU the RAND Corporation and Taiwan's Council on Advanced Policy Studies The PLA Beyond Borders surveys the dimensions of Chinese operations within the Indo Pacific region and globally The international contributors look both at the underlying enablers of these activities including expeditionary capabilities and logistics command and control and ISR systems as well as new and evolving operational concepts and operational patterns Employing different analytic lenses they portray a reformed PLA accelerating the pace of its overseas operations and increasing its modernization not only in the traditional domains but also in space and cyber Publisher s description The People's Liberation Army and Contingency Planning in China Andrew Scobell,Arthur S. Ding,Phillip Charles Saunders,Scott Harold,2015 How will China use its increasing military capabilities in the future China faces a complicated security environment with a wide range of internal and external threats Rapidly expanding international interests are creating demands for the People s Liberation Army PLA to conduct new missions ranging from protecting Chinese shipping from Somali pirates to evacuating citizens from Libya The most recent Chinese defense white paper states that the armed forces must make serious preparations to cope with the most complex and difficult scenarios so as to ensure proper responses at any time and under any circumstances Based on a conference co sponsored by Taiwan s Council of Advanced Policy Studies RAND Carnegie Endowment for International Peace and National Defense University this book brings together leading experts from the United States and Taiwan to examine how the PLA prepares for a range of domestic border and maritime contingencies The book includes chapters on how the PLA domestic security forces and the civilian government conduct contingency planning and how military commanders can draw upon national level military assets and mobilize civilian resources to execute their plans Substantive chapters assess PLA planning for potential domestic contingencies such as suppressing internal unrest border contingencies involving India Myanmar North Korea Afghanistan and Central Asia and maritime contingencies in both the near and the far seas Authors also examine PLA preparations and performance in disaster relief counterpiracy and noncombatant evacuation operations Improving PLA capabilities are giving Chinese leaders new options to respond to domestic and international crises but the PLA still has significant limitations in projecting and sustaining power especially in contested environments Back cover Naval War College Review ,2015 Proceedings of the United States Naval Institute United States Naval Institute,2016 Summary of World Broadcasts British Broadcasting Corporation.
