

Annex 2. Learner Attendance Conversion Tools (LACTs)

Learner Attendance Conversion Tool (LACT)	Description	How to Record in SF 2	Applicable Distance Learning Modality
LACT 1	Converting presence in online class as daily class attendance For online classes with daily checking of attendance using whatever electronic/digital platform or applications	Actual recording of number of class days present and absent. The learner shall be considered present even in the case where he/she was only able to enter the online learning platform for a few minutes due to internet connectivity issues and as long as there is notification via text/chat from the learner / parent / guardian. No any form of contact for the day means absent.	Online
LACT 2	Converting communication efforts with learners and/or parents into class day attendance as programmed in a weekly home learning plan The frequency of contact or communication with the parent/guardian or even with the learner in whatever approach can be converted into class day attendance. Note that contact/communication efforts may vary depending on the distance learning modality and may include but not limited to electronic/digital communication, using of designated drop/pick up kiosk/middleman for printed modules, phone calls, text messaging, handheld CB radio, letter correspondence or attending	Assigned class day equivalency for each contact effort by getting the total number of contact efforts over the allotted class days per week or month To illustrate, in a week schedule of six (6) class days in a modular learning approach, the equivalent class days for distribution is three (3) and another three (3) days for retrieval. This is to complete the 6 class-day per week stipulated in DepEd Order 30, s. 2020. Therefore, the weekly schedule for both distribution and retrieval of modules may be counted as two (2) contact efforts.	All distance learning modalities
