June 2013 Biology Paper A Level:

Immune system modeling and analysis Ramit Mehr,Miles Davenport,2015-04-22 The rapid development of new methods for immunological data collection from multicolor flow cytometry through single cell imaging to deep sequencing presents us now for the first time with the ability to analyze and compare large amounts of immunological data in health aging and disease The exponential growth of these datasets however challenges the theoretical immunology community to develop methods for data organization and analysis Furthermore the need to test hypotheses regarding immune function and generate predictions regarding the outcomes of medical interventions necessitates the development of mathematical and computational models covering processes on multiple scales from the genetic and molecular to the cellular and system scales The last few decades have seen the development of methods for presentation and analysis of clonal repertoires those of T and B lymphocytes and phenotypic surface marker based repertoires of all lymphocyte types and for modeling the intricate network of molecular and cellular interactions within the immune systems This e Book which has first appeared as a Frontiers in Immunology research topic provides a comprehensive online open access snapshot of the current state of the art on immune system modeling and analysis

Remarkable Natural Material Surfaces and Their Engineering Potential Michelle Lee,2014-02-04 This book explores a collection of natural surfaces their scientific characteristics and their unique engineering potential demonstrating that engineering applications can be found in unexpected places The surfaces covered range from botanical ones like rice and lotus leaves to insect surfaces like butterfly and dragonfly wings The variety of surfaces and numerous engineering potentials described show how biomimicry can be utilized to solve countless real world problems

Investigating and harnessing T-cell functions with engineered immune receptors and their ligands Bruno Laugel,2015-01-22 T cells are an essential component of the immune system that provide protection against pathogen infections and cancer and are involved in the aetiology of numerous autoimmune and autoinflammatory pathologies Their importance in disease the relative ease to isolate expand and manipulate them ex vivo have put T cells at the forefront of basic and translational research in immunology Decades of study have shed some light on the unique way T cells integrate extrinsic environmental cues influencing an activation program triggered by interactions between peptide MHC complexes and the antigen recognition machinery constituted of clonally distributed T cell receptors and their co receptor CD4 or CD8 The manipulation of these molecular determinants in cellular systems or as recombinant proteins has considerably enhanced our ability to understand antigen specific T cell activation to monitor ongoing T cell responses and to exploit T cells for therapy Even though these principles have given numerous insights in the biology of CD8 T cells that translate into promising therapeutic prospects as illustrated by recent breakthroughs in cancer therapy they have proven more challenging to apply to CD4 T cells This Research Topic aims to provide a comprehensive view of the recent insights provided by the use of engineered antigen receptors and their ligands on T cell activation and how they have been or could be harnessed to design efficient immunotherapies
