

5 Type of Output

The function of the output is alarm/pressurized indication. Alarm output provides a passive signal to indicate remotely when the enclosure is not pressurized and an active signal when pressurized.

5.1 PO- Pneumatic output

The pressurized output is a pneumatic signal, which may be used to operate other devices to provide alarm indication. The lack of any output signal indicates alarm. The positive pressure signal can be used to indicate the "pressurized" condition of the pressurized enclosure. The "alarm/pressurized" signal is supplied from the compressed air/inert gas supply at 60 psi / 4 bar / 0.4Mpa. When used with a suitable pressure switch for the area classification, the switching pressure will be set below the supply pressure, e.g. 15 PSI / 1 Bar / 0.1Mpa.

5.2 IS - Intrinsically Safe Output

The alarm output is a volt free contact which form part of an intrinsically safe circuit which then provides an alarm output in a safe (unclassified) area. The Mini-Y-Purge contact must only be connected to intrinsically safe circuit as the switch contacts are in the hazardous area.

For Mini-Z-Purge, a non inductive circuit can replace the Ex i circuit or when the alarm switch is fitted within the pressurized enclosure, 110 / 230V ac mains supply can be used when obtained directly from the main PE supply.

5.3 Certification

Expo-Telektron Mini-Z-Purge and Mini-Y-Purge systems are certified to FM and eULus approved to NFPA 495, North American standard the details of which are included in the certification section (B-6) of this manual.

5.4 Equipment components

The Expo-Telektron Mini-Z-Purge and Mini-Y-Purge system comprises of a number of component units. The units required depend on the type of system selected. These are summarized in Table 1 on page 6-1. The general description and function of each is as follows:
