

The background of the cover is a painting in a soft, impressionistic style. It depicts a town square or street scene. In the center, a tall church tower with a cross on top rises above the rooftops. The buildings are painted in warm, earthy tones of yellow, orange, and brown. In the foreground, several figures are visible: a person on the left holding a long staff or pole, and a group of people on the right, some standing and some sitting. The overall atmosphere is peaceful and historical.

PART I: JEAN-CHRISTOPHE (Dawn, Morning, Youth, Revolt) Romain Rolland, 2018-06-21 Jean Christophe is the history of the development of a musician of genius The present volume comprises the first four volumes of the original French viz L Aube Le Matin L Adolescent and La Revolte which are designated in the translation as Part I The Dawn Part II Morning Part III Youth Part IV Revolt Parts I and II carry Jean Christophe from the moment of his birth to the day when after his first encounter with Woman at the age of fifteen he falls back upon a Puritan creed Parts III and IV describe the succeeding five years of his life when at the age of twenty his sincerity integrity and unswerving honesty have made existence impossible for him in the little Rhine town of his birth An act of open revolt against German militarism compels him to cross the frontier and take refuge in Paris and the remainder of this vast book is devoted to the adventures of Jean Christophe in France

Romain Rolland's Jean-Christophe Romain Rolland, 2013-09 This historic book may have numerous typos and missing text Purchasers can usually download a free scanned copy of the original book without typos from the publisher Not indexed Not illustrated 1913 edition Excerpt all my life I am alone so only I may work for you do you good and you may love me a little later on when I am dead So the convalescent Christophe was nursed by those two good foster mothers Liebe und Noth Love and Poverty While his will was thus in abeyance Christophe felt a longing to be with people And although he was still very weak and it was a very foolish thing to do he used to go out early in the morning when the stream of people poured out of the residential streets on their way to their work or in the evening when they were returning His desire was to plunge into the refreshing bath of human sympathy Not that he spoke to a soul He did not even try to do so It was enough for him to watch the people pass and guess what they were and love them With fond pity he used to watch the workers hurrying along all as it were already worn out by the business of the day young men and girls with pale faces worn expressions and strange smiles thin eager faces beneath which there passed desires and anxieties all with a changing irony all so intelligent too intelligent a little morbid the dwellers in a great city They all hurried along the men reading the papers the women nibbling and munching Christophe would have given a month of his life to let one poor girl whose eyes were swollen with sleep who passed near him with a little nervous mincing walk sleep on for a few hours more Oh how she would have jumped at it if she had been offered the chancel He would have loved to pluck all the idle rich people out of their rooms hermetically sealed at that hour where they were so ungratefully lying at their ease and replace them in their beds in their comfortable existence with all these eager
