

A model Lister 6/1 diesel engine

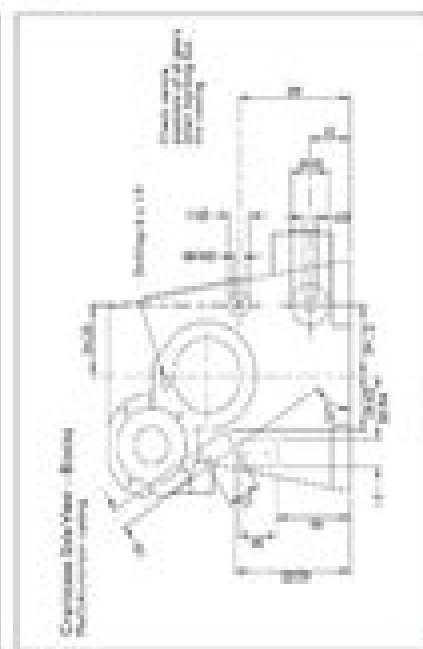

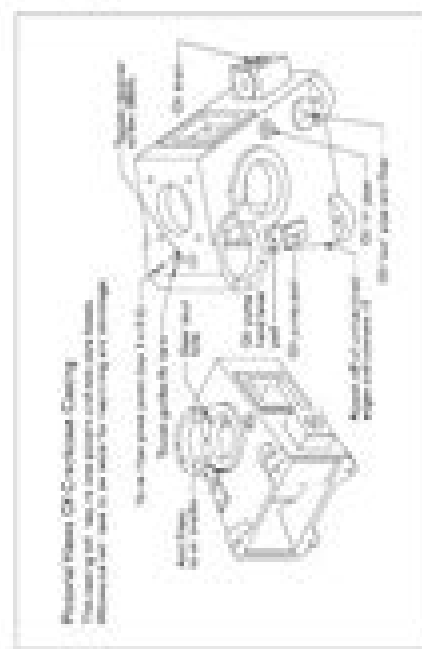

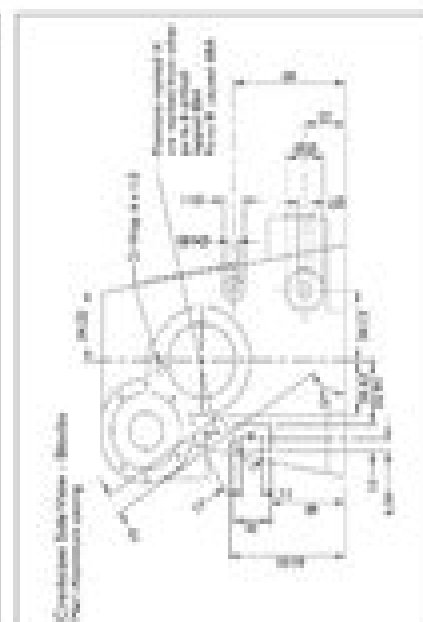

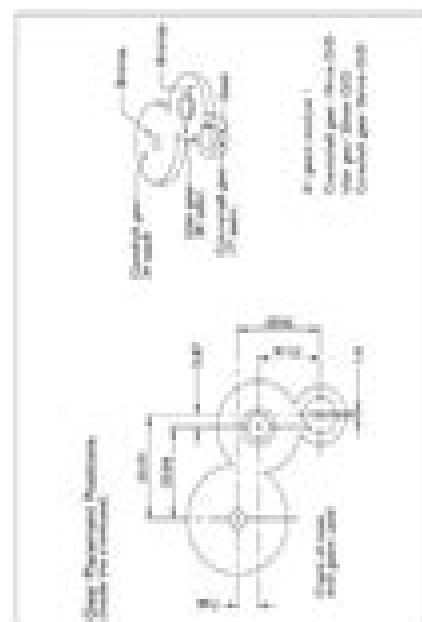

George Foster builds an impressive model.

There was that characteristic sound of a diesel as the air was blown with velocity and the needle rising a couple of degrees in the workshop. This wasn't just about engines that I had been making for years, but about the power of diesel engines before I had to shut it down. There is still much development work to do but there is no denying the pleasure of being close with some of them.

The story of this model starts with the fact that in 1977 I was back in 1988/89 I was a young teacher at a school in Glasgow in Scotland, and had moved into a new model workshop where had ample wall space for the information but I had not this in the way of technology which is almost obsolete. The answer was to make it as many components as possible and use what seemed to be the best of the best. I had been brought up on a farm in north Scotland and had developed an interest in internal combustion engines of all shapes and sizes.

The Lister engine came at a time when I was not far from my home as it was related to what I had seen in the past. When the package arrived I contacted and shortly after opened books for both the Lister
