Living and Nonliving Things

Living things are those that can grow, move, and breathe. You and I are living things, as are plants and animals. We eat, play, and talk!

Nonliving things do not do these things. Some nonliving things are rocks, toys, and pencils. They don't eat, grow, or breathe like living things do.

Remember, living things need air, water, and food to survive. They can also have babies and change over time.
