Loving Literature A Cultural History:

Loving Literature Deidre Lynch, 2015 Of the many charges laid against contemporary literary scholars one of the most common and perhaps the most wounding is that they simply don't love books And while the most obvious response is that no actually the profession of literary studies does acknowledge and address personal attachments to literature that answer risks obscuring a more fundamental question Why should they That question led Deidre Shauna Lynch into the historical and cultural investigation of Loving Literature How did it come to be that professional literary scholars are expected not just to study but to love literature and to inculcate that love in generations of students What Lynch discovers is that books and the attachments we form to them have long played a role in the formation of private life that the love of literature in other words is neither incidental to nor inextricable from the history of literature Yet at the same time there is nothing self evident or ahistorical about our love of literature our views of books as objects of affection have clear roots in late eighteenth century and nineteenth century publishing reading habits and domestic history Publisher's Web site A Cultural History of the Emotions in the Modern and Post-Modern Age Jane W. Davidson, Joy Damousi, 2020-08-20 The 20th century with revolutionary and rapid developments in travel communications and computerised technologies offered new and seemingly limitless horizons which accompanied and amplified distinctive experiences of emotions The birth of psychology and psychiatry revealed the importance of emotional life and that individuals could have control over their behaviour Traditional religion was challenged and alternative forms of spiritualism emerged Creative and performing arts continued to shape understandings and experiences of emotions from realism to detachment holistic to fragmented notions of self and society The role of emotions in family life focused on how to deal with modern day freedom and anxiety In the public sphere people used emotion to oppress as well as liberate Countering threats to national security personal and cultural identity a range of political motivated activities emerged embracing peace humanitarian and environmental causes This volume surveys the means by which modern experience shaped how why and where emotions were expressed monitored and controlled

Literature in the Making Nancy Glazener, 2015-10-15 In the eighteenth century literature meant learned writings by the twentieth century literature had come to be identified with imaginative aesthetically significant works and academic literary studies had developed special protocols for interpreting and valuing literary texts Literature in the Making examines what happened in between how literature came to be more precisely specified and valued how it was organized into genres canons and national traditions and how it became the basis for departments of modern languages and literatures in research universities Modern literature the version of literature familiar today was an international invention but it was forged when literary cultures traditions and publishing industries were mainly organized nationally Literature in the Making examines modern literature's coalescence and institutionalization in the United States considered as an instructive instance of a phenomenon that was going global Since modern literature initially offered a way to formulate the value of legacy texts by authors such as Homer Cervantes and Shakespeare however the development of literature and literary culture in the U S was fundamentally transnational Literature in the Making argues that Shakespeare studies one of the richest tracts of nineteenth century U S literary culture was a key domain in which literature came to be valued both for fuelling modern projects and for safeguarding values and practices that modernity put at risk a foundational paradox that continues to shape literary studies and literary culture Bringing together the histories of literature s competing conceptualizations its print infrastructure its changing status in higher education and its life in public culture during the long nineteenth century Literature in the Making offers a robust account of how and why literature mattered then and matters now By highlighting the lively collaboration between academics and non academics that prevailed before the ascendancy of the research university starkly divided experts from amateurs Literature in the Making also opens new possibilities for envisioning how academics might partner with the reading public
