

PROJECT

THE LUXOR

LESSON PLAN

This activity is designed for review and enrichment. It is assumed that the students have already been instructed on calculating the various dimensions of a pyramid, slant height in particular, in order to calculate the surface area and volume. The Luxor hotel has world-record attributes that help the student distinguish the various components of the pyramid. The lesson is self-directed, however, each question has a particular point of emphasis that the teacher should assess.

1. The student should place the given height in the interior of the pyramid, perpendicular to the base, rather than along the surface of the pyramid.
2. Again, the student is to identify and label these dimensions. Each of these three requires the student to visualize a right triangle within the pyramid. Encourage the students to sketch these triangles.
3. The area of the base is needed for calculating both surface area and volume. Focusing on the size of the casino, helps the students distinguish between area of the base (B) and a base edge (b).
4. The students here are to use the given height, and not the calculated slant height which is often erroneously done on calculating volume. The idea of the atrium focuses student attention on the interior of the pyramid.
5. The amount of glass used on the hotel is intended to draw the students' attention to the lateral surface of the pyramid, so they may visualize the lateral area as four distinct triangles.
6. This question makes connections to previous material, specifically, trigonometry and corresponding angles.
7. The novelty of the inclinator helps distinguish the difference between the slant height and the lateral edge. The fact that their angles to the horizontal are different makes for a good discussion on which length should be longer: a smaller angle should yield a longer length and a longer horizontal distance.

Concepts

Pyramids: slant height, lateral edge, surface area and volume; right triangle trigonometry.

Time: 1 hour

Materials

Student handout.

Preparation

Students need sound understanding of pyramids and their components.

SOLUTIONS

1. See diagram at the right
2. Slant Height = 476.3 feet
Lateral Edge = 575.5 feet
Diagonal of the Base = 913.6 feet
3. Base Area of the Casino = 120,000 square feet
Percent of Total Base = $12,000/417,316 \approx 29\%$
4. Volume = 48.6 million cubic feet.
The actual atrium is only 29 million cubic feet.
The various rooms in the hotel account for the difference.
5. Amount of Glass = 13 acres = 566,280 square feet.
Lateral area = 615,380 sq. ft. The walls of the hotel are also comprised of steel and concrete, which account for the difference.
6. Angle of Glass and Floor = $\tan^{-1}(\text{height}/\text{half of base edge}) = \tan^{-1}(350/323) = \tan^{-1}(1.083) \approx 47.3^\circ$
Assuming all floors are parallel to one another and the glass wall represents a transversal, the angles made by the wall and each floor are corresponding angles.
7. Angle of Inclinator: $\sin^{-1}(\text{height}/\text{lateral edge}) = \sin^{-1}(350/575.5) \approx \sin^{-1}(.608) \approx 37.5^\circ$
