Digital Authorship R. Lyle Skains,2019-02-07 This Element looks at contemporary authorship via three key authorial roles indie publisher hybrid author and fanfiction writer The twenty first century s digital and networked media allows writers to disintermediate the established structures of royalty publishing and to distribute their work directly to and often in collaboration with their readers This demotic author one who is of the people often works in genres considered popular or derivative The demotic author eschews the top down communication flow of author text reader in favor of publishing platforms that generate attention capital such as blogs fanfiction communities and social media

The Emergence of the Digital Humanities Steven E. Jones,2013-08-15 The past decade has seen a profound shift in our collective understanding of the digital network What was once understood to be a transcendent virtual reality is now experienced as a ubiquitous grid of data that we move through and interact with every day raising new questions about the social locative embodied and object oriented nature of our experience in the networked world In The Emergence of the Digital Humanities Steven E Jones examines this shift in our relationship to digital technology and the ways that it has affected humanities scholarship and the academy more broadly Based on the premise that the network is now everywhere rather than merely out there Jones links together seemingly disparate cultural events the essential features of popular social media the rise of motion control gaming and mobile platforms the controversy over the gamification of everyday life the spatial turn fabrication and 3D printing and electronic publishing and argues that cultural responses to changes in technology provide an essential context for understanding the emergence of the digital humanities as a new field of study in this millennium The Open Access version of this book available at <https://doi.org/10.4324/9780203093085> has been made available under a Creative Commons Attribution Non Commercial No Derivatives 4.0 license
