The organization of a community is based on the utilization of the energy from the sun within a given ecosystem. The community is also defined by the interrelated niches within it.

Within a community, organisms are dependent on the survival of other organisms. Energy is passed from one organism to another.

Food Chain: Energy cycles, and is passed, from the sun to a producer (ex: plants) to a consumer (ex: cow) and back into the nutrient pool through decomposers (ex: mushrooms). The greatest amount of energy in a community is in the producers.

Vocabulary:

Habitat – The place in which an animal or plant naturally lives, which provides food, water, shelter, and space. The size of the habitat depends on the organism's needs.

Organism – any living thing

Niches - The function that an organism performs in the food web of that community; it includes everything that an organism does and needs in its environment. (No two types of organisms can occupy exactly the same niche in a community. During an animal's life cycle, its niche can change. For example: What the animal eats, what eats it, and other relationships.)

Ecosystem – groups of living things and the environment they live in; includes the ways living things interact with other living things and non-living things

Community – a group of organisms that share an environment

Life Cycle – the various stages of life (ex: egg, tadpole, frog)

Humans have a major impact on ecosystems:

I and II, II and III, II and IV, III and IV. Answer: B. II and III. Every change in price reflects what happens in the battle between bulls and bears. Markets rise when bulls feel more strongly than bears. They rally when buyers are confident and sellers demand a premium for participating in the game that is going against them. There is a buyer and a seller behind every transaction. The number of stocks or futures bought and sold is equal by definition.
