

Logical Increments PC Buying Guide

A guide for those wishing to take a look at today's recommended builds, across a wide range of budgets. If you have a specific budget, take a look at the closest "Total." Alternatively, you can take a look at what is considered "modest" or "outstanding." This guide goes by logical increments; each build is a bit more expensive and a bit better than one before it.

*SSDs are optional. Average users/gamers are NOT recommended to get SSDs. Read below for further information.

Important Note	This is just a guide. The components recommended are great, but if you do your own research, you can probably do even better. NEVER buy something because "someone says so."
HDD:	13 Spindles or WD Black. Make sure it is at least 7200RPM and (if possible) 32MB or 64MB of cache. Get the highest platter density possible.
RAM:	You will only need 2GB of RAM, or 3GB if you want to be safe. 4GB is more than enough. 2GB in 2x2GB, 4GB in 2x2GB, 6GB in 3x2GB.
PSU:	For their price, Antec, Seasonic, Corsair are very good. OCZ and Silverstone are OK. HEC and CM are acceptable. Get something that is 80+ certified. Do not skimp on PSU. Connect ones by.
Case:	Recommendations are subjective. Must be big enough to fit your hardware in. Look for good airflow and cable management. Bottom mounted PSU is bonus.
GPU:	ASUS and Gigabyte are very good. Sapphire, XFX and MSI are good. HIS is OK. Look for the better heatsink/fan and warranty.
MOBO:	AMD 955 is better for single threaded applications/games. AMD 935 is better in multi threaded. Average. Both perform similarly. AMD 955 is great, Intel 750 is better, Intel 930 is fantastic.
DVD:	Of not overlocking, stock RMP is fine. Air cooling. CM Hyper 232+ is very good ($40). Noctua NH-D14 is great ($95). Water cooling. Too advanced for this guide.
DVD:	The Samsung/LG/LITE-ON/Verax DVD writers that you find for $20-$25 are fine. Really. Or you can skip DVD drives altogether.
Prices:	Prices taken from www.newegg.com. Total prices are not meant to be exact. Prices are for the components listed. Prices are for the components listed. Prices are for the components listed.

Unimportant Note	This is just a guide. The components recommended are great, but if you do your own research, you can probably do even better. NEVER buy something because "someone says so."
This guide:	is good when it comes to recommending products that give you good "bang for your $55." That means not including some excellent, but overpriced, alternatives.
This guide:	is NOT good for those who want to make sure they get the best of the best. This means that not all of the best of the best is included. For example, EVGA makes great GPUs, but the price is not acceptable for 95% of people.
HDD:	is NOT good for those who insist on being loyal to only one brand.
RAM:	is NOT good for those looking for crossfire/SLI, water cooling or hexacore recommendations. (Well, not yet. This might change as new products are introduced/prices lowered.)
SSD:	is cheaper to get 1TB x 2 than 2TB. The new 512B drives offer better storage/SSD.
PSU:	SSDs are NOT recommended for non-commercial and business related tasks and advanced users.
MOBO:	If you insist on getting an SSD get a 32GB (or 64GB, or 80GB MAX) for your OS, Intel, Crucial, OCZ, Corsair. All make good SSDs. Below are a few recommendations.
GPU:	$100: Corsair Vengeance 32GB, OCZ Agility 32GB, Intel XPS-V 4GB, $150: OCZ Vertex Series 8GB, $160/$170: OCZ Agility 2 50GB/8GB, $180: OCZ Vertex 2 50GB, $215: Intel XPS-M 8GB (new).
Case:	Please note that SSDs are still developing very fast, and what is good today could be outclassed in a couple of weeks. Treat these recommendations with EXTREME CAUTION.
PSU:	Most of these builds, the PSU is more than you need. This is so that if you overlock, or go for crossfire/SLI in the future, you will be fine.
CPU:	Don't get the Intel Core 2 Duo E6700. It's a great CPU, but it's not a good choice for this guide. The E6700 is a great CPU, but it's not a good choice for this guide.
GPU:	Games today are much more bottlenecked by GPUs than CPUs. If you have the 955/5750, then you can CPU/SLI without getting a bottleneck.
GPU:	The i5 750 is same level of CPUs for gaming. Getting an i7 will not give you any extra performance in current games. It will, however, give you 8 threads, and amazing performance in applications.
Case:	Innovation and development means that every 2-3 years (approx), time company will come up with a product range superior to its competitor. Two years later, the competitor does the same.
MOBO:	For crossfire/SLI: One card is always better than two cards for the same price. The 5870 is more than enough for all current games on high res/details.
PSU:	Mid-tower cases are perfectly fine. The most important thing is that they fit your mobo and GPU, and pretty much any mid-tower case will do that.
MOBO:	The bigger it is, however, the easier it is to work with. GPUs seem to be getting bigger/larger all the time. If you upgrade to water cooling in the future, you will be glad you have a bigger case.
MOBO:	It is highly likely that the recommended mobos are more than adequate for your needs. This is so that if in the future you wish to add HDDs or go for crossfire, you can do so easily.
MOBO:	The 930 is a great CPU that fits the bill for this guide. It's a great CPU, but it's not a good choice for this guide. The 930 is a great CPU, but it's not a good choice for this guide.
MOBO:	The 955/5870 build is not included, since it will cost more than the "Excellent" build but will have a weaker CPU, and thus is not a "logical increment." CPU-wise.
MOBO:	This guide is a combination of two previous ones, and is loosely based on the principles employed by Lulicon and /g/uidex in making their guides.

Explanation	This is just a guide. The components recommended are great, but if you do your own research, you can probably do even better. NEVER buy something because "someone says so."
Naming:	Each build is given an appropriate name, so that it is easy to get a sense of what you are buying. The "good" build is good, the "great" build is great, etc. etc.
Options:	Some builds have multiple hardware recommendations. These are "just as good or even better" alternatives. The total price is for the recommended only.
Prices:	Prices are taken from Newegg.com. Total prices are not meant to be exact. Prices are for the components listed. Prices are for the components listed. Prices are for the components listed.
HDD:	Typically come in 320GB or 500GB. The latter is a better choice for this guide. The smaller the chance of mechanical failure, the better. 320GB is fine for a normal user.
SSD:	500GB is enough to store some 300+ quality DVD rips, while a person who enjoys collecting various series would find a 1TB more adequate.
RAM:	The high-end 8GB SSDs, or the new generation of 50GB SSDs, typically cost $200. You will notice a faster boot, and faster read/write and program loads. This is a good thing.
RAM:	The BAD thing about SSDs is that you do not need them. No one spends all their time loading programs or rebooting. SSDs are only for advanced users or professionals only.
Case:	Getting RAM from other than the recommended manufacturers is fine, if you wish. RAM is one of those things that "if it works, it works forever."
Case:	CM690, Kingston, and Corsair have a better reputation for quality control; you are less likely to receive defective sticks from them. Almost all RAM manufacturers give lifetime warranties though.
Case:	CORSAIR RAM is a must, and E333MHz/2 or 1800MHz makes very little difference. Just get what is cheaper. 2GB will get you by. 4GB is enough for normal users. 6GB is for triple channel.
PSU:	Recommendations are always subjective. If you have your heart set on a particular case, get it and be happy. Just make sure that all your hardware fits in it, and that it has good airflow.
PSU:	All the PSUs recommended provide MORE than the recommended wattage. No other component can damage the rest of your PC as much as a bad PSU, so it is always better to be safe than sorry.
PSU:	A novice may ask: "Would having too much power damage my PC?" No, the PSU only provides as much power as is needed. A 700w PSU provides only 300w when the PC needs only 300w.
GPU:	Other than "distraction", all the PSUs recommended are 80+ or higher. If you choose any PSU other than the recommended, PLEASE get something high quality, and of similar or higher wattage.
GPU:	Recommended is fine. The 5850 and 5870 are true "best-of-their-kind" graphics cards. They will play all games at high res, and old games on low-medium.
GPU:	The 5750 and 5870 are true "best-of-their-kind" graphics cards. They will play all games at high res, and old games on low-medium.
GPU:	The 5850 and 5870 are high-end cards; they will play pretty much anything on high, and will probably continue to do so for the next couple of years.
GPU:	nVidia's current generation of cards, the 400 series, is not priced competitively yet. The high temp/power draw/price is also discouraging. Thus none of them is recommended.
GPU:	If you insist on nVidia, some of the acceptable cards from the previous generations are: 9800 GT ($150), 290 GT ($150), 280 GT ($150), 260 GT ($150).
MOBO:	Most of the mobos are fine. The 930 is a great CPU that fits the bill for this guide. It's a great CPU, but it's not a good choice for this guide. The 930 is a great CPU, but it's not a good choice for this guide.
MOBO:	In short, get the mobo that is compatible with your CPU, has the latest possible chipsets, gives you enough room for future RAM/HDD/GPU upgrades, and if possible, USB 3.0 and SATA 3.0.
This guide:	Once again it must be stressed that this is only a guide. Neither this nor a thousand other guides can substitute you doing your own research, and getting what is best for you.
Finally:	If you like something recommended here, please take the time to read up on why it is good when compared to other alternatives, and purchase it only if you are satisfied with the comparison.
