

LIZARD EVOLUTION VIRTUAL LAB

Answer the following questions as you finish each module of the virtual lab or as a final assessment after completing the entire virtual lab.

Module 1: Ecomorphs

1. At the beginning of the virtual lab, you were asked to sort eight lizards into categories. What criteria did you initially use to make your groups? Did you revise your criteria later? Why?

I based my measure off of the legs. I picked the size of the legs since I believe that each of the unique species that evolved is more of these natural measurements. I didn't assess my standards.

2. An adaptation is a structure or function that is common in a population because it enhances the ability to survive and reproduce in a particular environment. Provide one example and an explanation of one adaptation in the Anolis lizards.

One transformation was the short legs on the anoles. Hypsiglena exilis exilis. I think this is a direct result of the short branches it was on. The more limited leg made it simpler for the reptile to climb the shorter branches.

3. Provide one evolutionary explanation for why lizards living in the same part of the habitat (e.g., grass) would have similar characteristics.

Lizards in the same habitats would have similar characteristics because there are many ways to do something, however there is only one way that is the best for surviving. Basically, lizards in the same habitats have the characteristics that are most fit for survival, so most lizards in that habitat would exhibit those most fit characteristics.

4. What is an ecomorph? Provide one example from the virtual lab.

What is an ecomorph? Provide one example from the virtual lab. Eco-morphs are species with similar body types and habitats. An example is how the Hypsiglena exilis exilis and ocular Puerto Rico lizards both have short legs.

5. How is an ecomorph different from a species?

It only classifies the organisms as having similar body types and habitats, but species can have other different characteristics such as color or too it.

6. Explain how a particular body feature of one of the lizard ecomorphs from the virtual lab is an adaptation to their particular niche.

The ocular Puerto Rico lizards have short legs because it needs to be able to stick and hold on to things in their habitat.
