

What Is Irony?

Irony is a rhetorical device that is used to express an intended meaning by using language that conveys the opposite meaning when taken literally.

Irony is a literary and rhetorical device, in which there is a discrepancy between what is expected and what actually occurs or is meant. It can be verbal irony, where a speaker says something but means the opposite, or situational irony, where there is an incongruity between what is expected to happen and what actually happens. Irony is often used to create humor or to make a point about the nature of a situation.

Follow us on:

Examples of Irony:

- A traffic jam on the way to a protest against traffic congestion.
- A plumber's house having leaky pipes.
- A fire station burning down.
- A weather forecaster getting caught in a rainstorm without an umbrella.
- A librarian getting a parking ticket for illegally parking in a "no parking" zone.
- A teacher giving detention to a student for being late to class, but the teacher is also late.
- A play about a fireman who saves people, but the fireman playing the role is actually a arsonist.
- A person who is deathly afraid of heights is a window washer.

on the interpretation and the linguistic realisation of irony in Arabic and English through an interdisciplinary approach and consequently identifies similarities and discrepancies in the form and function of ironic devices between these languages As such it will appeal to professional translators instructors and students of translation as well as language learners language teachers and researchers in cross cultural and inter pragmatic disciplines Воспоминания о комдиве И.В.
