Phonological Typology Matthew K. Gordon, 2016-05-06 This book provides an overview of phonological typology the study of how sounds are distributed across the languages of the world and why they display these distributions and patterns It examines major phonological phenomena such as phoneme inventories syllable structure phonological alternations stress tone intonation and prosodic morphology and investigates issues including how common certain types of sounds are cross linguistically and why how many languages differentiate questions and statements using intonation which areas of the world tend to be associated with more complex tone distinctions and the relationship between cross linguistic and language internal frequency Data are drawn from existing typologies from the results of a survey of various phonological patterns in the 100 language sample from the World Atlas of Language Structures and from corpora of individual languages Matthew Gordon analyses these data and explores the correlations between different often superficially unrelated phonological properties to gain insight into the driving forces behind these phenomena He provides an overview of synchronic and diachronic explanations for the patterns observed and discusses how formal phonological theory has attempted to model the typological data One of relatively few typological works devoted to phonology this book will be a valuable resource for phonologists and phoneticians from advanced undergraduate level upwards as well all those with an interest in language typology

The charcoal transition Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations, 2018-06-06 Charcoal is widely used for cooking and heating in developing countries The consumption of charcoal has been at high level and the demand may keep growing over the next decades particularly in sub Saharan Africa Some preliminary studies indicate that among commonly used cooking fuels unsustainably produced charcoal can be the most greenhouse gas intensive fuels and simple measures could deliver high GHG mitigation benefits Through the Paris Agreement on climate change adopted in 2015 countries set themselves ambitious targets to curb climate change and forest related measures have an important role to play in climate change mitigation and adaptation Over 70% of the countries who have submitted their intended nationally determined contributions NDCs mention forestry and land use mitigation measures Despite the importance of woodfuel in many countries few have explicitly included measures to reduce emissions from woodfuel production and consumption Many of the NDCs that include forestry do not yet provide detailed information on how mitigation is to be achieved The overall objective of the publication is to provide data and information to allow for informed decision making on the contribution sustainable charcoal production and consumption can make to climate change mitigation More specifically the publication aims to answer the following questions What are the climate change impacts of the current practices on charcoal production and consumption worldwide and across regions What is the potential of sustainable charcoal production in GHG emission reductions and how such potential can be achieved What are the key barriers to sustainable charcoal production and what actions are required to develop a climate smart charcoal sector

African Governance Report III 2013 ,2013 The African Governance Report the most comprehensive report on governance in Africa assesses and monitors the progress of African countries on governance identifies capacity gaps in governance institutions and proposes policies and strategic interventions to improve governance on the continent This third edition of the Report while continuing to monitor governance trends adopts a thematic approach elections and the management of diversity in Africa Elections are central to democratic governance and the political management of diversity in plural societies While elections are held with greater regularity in Africa their content and quality remains suspect in many countries with Africa's rich diversity deployed as a combustible tool in electoral conflicts. Elections have often triggered conflict with violence, tensions, acrimony, and sharp elite divisions surrounding electoral processes and outcomes, a worrying trend for Africa's democratic future. The Report investigates elections in the face of managing diversity in Africa. It recommends major electoral institutional, political, and constitutional reforms to enable elections to facilitate the democratic management of diversity while significantly improving their quality and credibility. These include reform of the party system to make it more inclusive and democratic, a move to more proportional electoral systems, and an increase in the autonomy and effectiveness of election management boards. The Report argues that regional and subregional initiatives and frameworks for elections, democracy, and governance have to be implemented and monitored to improve electoral performance and promote democratic consolidation and stability. South African Schooling: The Enigma of Inequality Nic Spaull, Jonathan D. Jansen, 2019-11-05. This volume brings together many of South Africa's leading scholars of education and covers the full range of South African schooling from financing and policy reform to in-depth discussions of literacy, numeracy, teacher development, and curriculum change. The book moves beyond a historical analysis and provides an inside view of the questions South African scholars are now grappling with: Are there different and preferential equilibria we have not yet thought of or explored, and if so, what are they? In practical terms, how does one get to a more equitable distribution of teachers, resources, and learning outcomes? While decidedly local, these questions resonate throughout the developing world. South Africa today is the most unequal country in the world. The richest 10% of South Africans lay claim to 65% of national income and 90% of national wealth. This is the largest 90/10 gap in the world, and one that is reflected in the schooling system. Two decades after apartheid, it is still the case that the life chances of most South African children are determined not by their ability or the result of hard work and determination but instead by the colour of their skin, the province of their birth, and the wealth of their parents. Looking back on almost three decades of democracy in South Africa, it is this stubbornness of inequality and its patterns of persistence that demands explanation, justification, and analysis. This is a landmark book on basic education in South Africa, an essential volume for those interested in learning outcomes and their inequality in South Africa. The various chapters present conceptually and empirically sophisticated analyses of learning outcomes across divisions of race, class, and place. The book brings together the wealth of decades of research output from top quality researchers to explore what has improved, what has not, and why. Prof Lant Pritchett, Harvard University. There is much wisdom in this collection from many of the best education analysts in South Africa. No surprise that they conclude that without a large and sustained expansion in well-trained teachers, early childhood education, and adequate school resources, South Africa will continue to sacrifice its people's future to maintaining the privileges of the few. Prof Martin Carnoy, Stanford University. Altogether, one can derive from this very valuable volume, if not an exact blueprint for the future, then certainly at least a crucial and evidence-based itinerary for the next few steps. Dr Luis Crouch, RTI. Suid-Afrikaanse Hofverslae, 2015.
