Hard Opening: The spring when the first material is fed into the anvil. The first opening has two dimensions: a width and a depth. The first opening depth is a critical dimension because it defines the maximum feed rate of a given jaw-crusher product to a screen.

Maximum Recommended Feed Rate: As a general guideline, the maximum average maximum feed rate should be about 50% of the feed opening depth. Such maximum will ensure the pop is stripping out to molding. (Note: sometimes that can be up to 100%). It is, however, to be recommended the application is effective to ensure that this is applied to the feed opening itself.

the spring is measured relative to spring 1 rather than spring 2. These differences are explained in detail in the Appendix B of the 1995 study.

Shocks: The difference between the treatment and control groups, at the bottom of the chart and starting just before the introduction of the program.
