The Medical Journal of Malaysia ,1991      Managing Wildlife in a Changing World Jafari R. Kideghesho,2021-12-08 The declining trends of wildlife habitats and species populations are obvious consequences of the socio economic political ecological and technological changes occurring globally Along with human population growth there is a growing wave of wildlife diseases invasive alien species human wildlife conflicts climate change poaching infrastructure development and economic options that are ecologically damaging These changes have implications on the management of wildlife resources Managing Wildlife in a Changing World draws experiences from different parts of the world on status challenges and efforts of reversing the current negative trends on wildlife habitats and species in the face of these changes This book is useful for academicians researchers policy makers conservation practitioners students and other interested readers      Malaria eradication World Health Organization,2020-04-19 In 2016 at the request of the WHO Director General a group of scientists and public health experts from around the world were brought together to advise WHO on future scenarios for malaria including whether eradication was feasible Over three years the members of the Strategic Advisory Group on Malaria Eradication SAGme analysed trends and reviewed future projections for the factors and determinants that underpin malaria Our analysis and discussions reaffirmed that eradication will result in millions of lives saved and a return on investment of billions of dollars We did not identify biological or environmental barriers to malaria eradication In addition our review of models accounting for a variety of global trends in the human and biophysical environment over the next three decades suggests that the world of the future will have much less malaria to contend with However even with our most optimistic scenarios and projections we face an unavoidable fact using current tools we will still have 11 million cases of malaria in Africa in 2050 Under these circumstances it is impossible to set a target date for malaria eradication to formulate a reliable operational plan for malaria eradication or to give it a price tag Our current priority should be to establish the foundation for a successful future eradication effort At the same time we need to guard against the risk of failure as such failure might lead to the waste of huge sums of money frustrate all those involved national governments and malaria experts alike and cause a lack of confidence in the global health community's ability to rid the world of this disease We need a renewed drive towards research and development R D on vector control chemotherapy and vaccines in order to develop the transformative tools and knowledge base necessary for achieving eradication in the highest burden areas We need political leadership that makes effective and efficient use of increased domestic and international funding We need bespoke national and subnational strategies guided by improved use of data and stronger delivery systems to provide the appropriate mix of services to all those in need without financial hardship We need strengthened cross border regional and international cooperation on malaria control and elimination efforts worldwide When these critical foundations are laid we believe that the world will be in a much stronger position to make the final and credible push for eradication As we complete our work in 2019 we recognize that the world stands at a crossroads in the fight against malaria Despite huge progress in reducing malaria cases and deaths between 2000 and 2015 in the last five years we have witnessed the stalling of global progress The world is not on track to meet the 2020 milestones that will lead us to lower case incidence and mortality by 90% by 2030 from 2015 levels 5 Without massive concerted and coordinated action we are unlikely to meet these targets While we are certain that eradication by a specific date is not a promise we can make to the world just yet there is a clear agenda beginning with getting back on track to achieve the goals of the GTS that should immediately be pursued to make eradication possible One Health Case

Studies Susan Cork,Joann Lindenmayer,2024-12-24 The One Health Case Studies book is a collection of international case studies showcasing the work of One Health practitioners and their projects The book explores current areas of One Health grouped into themes of One Health policy pests and pathogens water and the environment agriculture and food security and education and community engagement This book provides an understanding of One Health practice globally through 28 diverse case studies Each case study is carefully designed with clear aims expected learning outcomes and reflective questions to encourage academic mastery and real world application of knowledge The book also bridges the gap between theory and practice by offering insights into current One Health best practices challenges and opportunities Mosquitopia Marcus Hall,Dan Tamir,2021-09-02 This edited volume brings together natural scientists social scientists and humanists to assess if or how we may begin to coexist harmoniously with the mosquito The mosquito is humanity s deadliest animal killing over a million people each year by transmitting malaria yellow fever Zika and several other diseases Yet of the 3 500 species of mosquito on Earth only a few dozen of them are really dangerous so that the question arises as to whether humans and their mosquito foe can learn to live peacefully with one another Chapters assess polarizing arguments for conserving and preserving mosquitoes as well as for controlling and killing them elaborating on possible consequences of both strategies This book provides informed answers to the dual question could we eliminate mosquitoes and should we Offering insights spanning the technical to the philosophical this is the go to book for exploring humanity s many relationships with the mosquito which becomes a journey to finding better ways to inhabit the natural world Mosquitopia will be of interest to anyone wanting to explore dependencies between human health and natural systems while offering novel perspectives to health planners medical experts environmentalists and animal rights advocates
