Enterprise Risk Management Mirna Jabbour, Jason Crawford, 2024-12-02 ERM is considered a dynamic capability that is critical to companies success from strategic and performance perspectives and is increasingly implemented in response to growing pressure from external stakeholders to enact and add legitimacy to existing management control systems However implementing ERM is a challenging process where success is dependent on balancing technical and social factors This book explores the challenges of implementing ERM from technical cognitive and social perspectives to enhance the organisation's capacity to generate and integrate information and knowledge about risk and uncertainty. In existing publications ERM implementation is mainly viewed from technical or educational perspectives and treated as formal technical linear processes. This book takes a different stance by recognising that implementation depends on formal and informal mechanisms that require a balanced combination of technical and social approaches. It changes the paradigm to demonstrate that the implementation of ERM is not a linear process that is similar across industries and organisations but relies on multiple dependencies such as leadership, corporate governance and the culture of the organisation. This book will be a valuable resource for scholars as well as upper level students across disciplines related to risk management including accounting and finance, business and management, leadership and organisational studies.

Alternative Models of Addiction Hanna Pickard, Serge H. Ahmed, Bennett Foddy, 2015-12-07. For much of the 20th century theories of addictive behaviour and motivation were polarized between two models. The first model viewed addiction as a moral failure for which addicts are rightly held responsible and judged accordingly. The second model in contrast viewed addiction as a specific brain disease caused by neurobiological adaptations occurring in response to chronic drug or alcohol use and over which addicts have no choice or control. As our capacity to observe neurobiological phenomena improved the second model became scientific orthodoxy increasingly dominating addiction research and informing public understandings of addiction. More recently however a dissenting view has emerged within addiction research based partly on new scientific research and partly on progress in philosophical and psychological understandings of relevant mental phenomena. This view does not revert to treating addiction as a moral failure but nonetheless holds that addictive behaviour is fundamentally motivated by choice and subject to at least a degree of voluntary control. On this alternative model of addiction addictive behaviour is an instrumental means to ends that are desired by the individual although much controversy exists with respect to the rationality or irrationality of these ends, the degree and nature of the voluntary control of addictive behaviour and motivation, the explanation of the difference between addictive and non-addictive behaviour and motivation and lastly the extent to which addictive behaviour and motivation is correctly characterised as pathological or diseased. This research topic includes papers in the traditions of neuroscience, psychology, philosophy, law and social science that explore alternative understandings of addiction. Resources in Education, 1985.

Vestibular Rehabilitation, Neuromodulation and Balance in Clinical Applications of Neurology and Otoneurology: What is the Recent Evidence from Basic and Clinical Research? Catarina Costa Boffino, Michael C. Schubert, 2025-05-22. Balance control is a challenging area for neurological and otoneurological patients concerning the understanding of the disease, the components involved in the clinical condition, adaptation and compensation for the condition as well as the follow up treatment that can be put in place. The physiological and functional features of balance control are complex and usually involve more than one method for specific assessment and for gaining knowledge of the complete case.

Rehabilitation can help to understand current balance control limitations in patients and is of great interest for the prognosis and possible interventions for the unbalanced and balance condition Vestibular rehabilitation is one of the most appropriate approaches in balance disorders and more recently non invasive neuromodulation is expected to help people with balance control disorders Yet we need to have a clear overview of where in basic concepts and clinical applications we are in this field Our goal with this Research Topic is to bring together the main exponents in the field of balance disorder rehabilitation in order to characterize the historical moments and what evidence is already known in this field as well as what new paths are expected Authors can submit articles in the field of neurology otoneurology psychiatry physical therapy vestibular rehabilitation neuroimaging and invasive and non invasive neuromodulation concerning balance control assessment or therapeutics We look for articles in basic concepts as well as clinical applications
