A. Objectives:

1. Constructive proper titration and titration curve.
2. Understand and explain how the pH scale works.
3. Understand and describe the concept of acids, bases, and strength.
4. Compare acids and bases in terms of strength.
5. Calculate the pH of various acids/bases/solutions.
6. Calculate equilibrium pH, structure, and conjugation of acids and bases.

B. Scientific Methods: Data Tables and Graphs

1. Background:

Chemical equilibrium is a fundamental concept in chemistry. It is a state in which the concentrations of reactants and products are constant. This is achieved by the system reaching a state of minimum free energy.

1. Understanding and describing acids. Acids are substances that donate protons (H⁺) in aqueous solution. The strength of an acid is determined by its ability to donate protons. The pH scale is a measure of the acidity of a solution. It is defined as the negative logarithm of the concentration of H⁺ ions. The pH scale ranges from 0 to 14. A pH of 7 is neutral, a pH below 7 is acidic, and a pH above 7 is basic.

2. A buffer is a solution that resists changes in pH when small amounts of acid or base are added. Buffers are important in many biological and chemical systems. They are used to maintain a constant pH in a solution. The pH of a buffer is determined by the ratio of the concentrations of the acid and its conjugate base.

3. A titration is a process in which a known volume of a solution of known concentration is added to a solution of unknown concentration until the reaction is complete. The endpoint of a titration is the point at which the reaction is complete. The pH of a solution at the endpoint of a titration is determined by the ratio of the concentrations of the acid and its conjugate base.
