invention of a rejected playwright to cover the non appearance of a play which nobody would produce Isn t it always a mistake to write a play for a particular star I suggested Seems to me I ve read somewhere that that is among the besetting sins of you playwrights Old stuff my boy but this isn t one of those cases The person I had in mind for this play wasn t a star but a beginner quite unknown It was when I was in London putting on Fairy Gold that I saw her she had a small part in a pantomime and pantomime is the severest test of an actor s powers you know A little later she appeared in Honourable Women a capital play that died early but there again I felt her peculiar charm it was just that Her part was a minor one but she wore it as she might wear a glove she was exquisite No one ever captured my imagination as she did I watched her night after night I was afraid that when I heard her voice it would break the spell and I actually shook like a man with an ague when she tripped out on the stage as the ing nue in Honourable Women And her laughter You know how hollow the usual stage mirth is but that girl s laugh had the joy of the lark ascending By Jove I ejaculated there s more here than appears You re in love with the girl Rubbish he cried impatiently You ll think I m talking rot but this girl was the visualization of a character I had dreamed of and groped after for years That s all but it s a whole lot I can tell you Of course you established lines of communication and gave her a hint that you meant to write a play for her Certainly not That would have spoiled the whole thing It was her art not the woman that interested me I didn t want to take the chance of being disillusioned I have been through that experience and I prefer not to meet the people who act in my pieces I want their art not their views on human destiny or the best place to get lobster la Newburg Lady's Realm ,1910 Bulletin USA Division of Botany,1898
