Do Higher Achievers Cheat Less? An Experiment of Self-Revealing Individual Cheating

Erez Siniver,2017 The extensive body of survey based research correlating between students cheating and their academic grade point average GPA consistently finds a significant negative relationship between cheating and the GPA The present paper reports the results of a two round experiment designed to expose student cheating at the individual level and correlate it with three intellectual achievement measures the GPA the high school matriculation average grade MAG and the psychometric exam score PES The experiment involved two classes of third year economics students incentivized by a competitive reward to answer a multiple choice trivia quiz without consulting their electronic devices While this forbiddance was deliberately overlooked in the first round providing an opportunity to cheat it was strictly enforced in the second conducted two months later in the same classes with the same quiz A comparison of subjects performance in the two rounds self revealed a considerable extent of cheating in the first one Regressing the individual cheating levels on subjects gender and their intellectual achievement measures exhibited no significant differences in cheating between males and females However cheating of both genders was found to significantly increase with each achievement measure implying in sharp contrast with the direct question surveys that higher achievers are bigger cheaters

Teens and Cheating

Hal Marcovitz,2014 Experts say that in recent years there has been an epidemic of cheating among young people in the United States Cheating is more than just students sneaking the answers to school tests broadly defined it is breaking the rules to get ahead Examples of cheating today range from illegally downloading music from the internet which cheats the artists out of royalties to using performance enhancing drugs to gain an athletic advantage This book explores the ways teens cheat examines their reasons for doing so and discusses efforts to teach ethics to young people

Justice Or Just Us? Jason M. Stephens,2004 Jason Stephens traces the growth of cheating over three decades noting a disconnect between expressed shock and research that has shown over and over that most students do cheat at least some of the time Some students cheat for simple pragmatic reasons to get high grades and because they do not have time to do the work carefully However the researcher notes findings indicating that students do not generally cheat in all of their classes and that it is not the difficulty of the course that predicts in which classes they are more likely to cheat High school students especially cheat more when they perceive the teacher as less fair and caring and when their motivation in the course is more focused on grades and less on learning and understanding Students do not seem to feel that it really matters if they cheat under these circumstances Findings also suggest that students make a distinction between behaviors that are overtly dishonest such as copying the work of another which effectively serves to misrepresent one s state of knowledge and behaviors that are not inherently dishonest such as working with others which can serve to enrich one s interpersonal skills and academic learning Educators too should be cognizant of this distinction writes Stephens and be judicious in prohibiting collaboration Even with pervasive student acceptance the writer does not feel that it is acceptable as a society to tacitly accept cheating as a fact of life Cutting corners and compromising principles are habit forming They do not stop at graduation as seen in scandals in business and journalism Cheating or cutting corners in one's professional or personal life can cause real damage both to oneself and to others Stephens advocates that it is necessary both to care about and do something about cheating and that the best ways to reduce cheating are about good teaching by 1 Helping students understand the value of what they are being asked to learn by creating learning experiences that connect with their interests and have real world relevance 2 Considering whether some of the rules that are frequently broken are arbitrary or unnecessarily constraining 3 Connecting assessment integrally with learning creating assessments that are fair and meaningful representations of what students should have learned and 4 Giving students images of people who do not cut corners Finally Stephens concludes educators must strive to personally exemplify intellectual integrity looking for ways to make deep and searching honesty both palpable and attractive
