Manual could possibly be considered the first publication of woodshop class curriculum in existence although we may be wrong about that. It teaches the practical useful skills of woodworking tool design and building beginning with kindergarteners doing hand eye coordination exercises and learning observation skills progressing to drawing and construction with paper and ending with high school seniors forging iron tools. Through every step of a child's development Schwartz instructs teachers and students on how to design and construct useful objects out of different materials using geometry engineering calculations imagination and most importantly perhaps common sense. In the book Schwartz encourages teachers to let the kids use their imaginations and ingenuity when executing the building exercises with the aim of achieving the end result of the project. It's an infinitely useful guide.
