[9] The paper found statistical evidence supporting the underlying motivation for the Chinese government and industries to have implemented a carbon cap-and-trade system.

[9] Estimate the technological temperature as indicated by the index of the number of patents in the field of the technology. Then, use the index of the number of patents in the field of the technology to estimate the technological temperature. (The index of the number of patents in the field of the technology is the number of patents in the field of the technology divided by the number of patents in the field of the technology.)
