Abstract The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 12-week training program on the physical fitness and health of sedentary middle-aged men. The subjects were 20 men, aged 40-50 years, who were sedentary and had no history of cardiovascular disease. They were divided into two groups: a control group and an exercise group. The exercise group performed a 12-week training program consisting of three sessions per week, each lasting 30 minutes. The training program included aerobic exercise, strength training, and flexibility exercises. The control group did not participate in any exercise program. Physical fitness was measured using a variety of tests, including a 1-mile run, a 1.5-mile walk, a 1.5-mile jog, a 1.5-mile swim, and a 1.5-mile bike ride. Health was measured using a variety of tests, including blood pressure, heart rate, and cholesterol levels. The results of the study showed that the exercise group had significantly better physical fitness and health than the control group after 12 weeks of training.
