Abstract
The purpose of this study was to examine the effects of a 12-week training program on the physical and psychological health of sedentary, middle-aged women. The program consisted of three sessions per week, each lasting 45 minutes. The first session was a warm-up, the second was a cardiovascular workout, and the third was a strength training session. The results showed that the women who participated in the program experienced significant improvements in their physical health, including increased cardiovascular fitness, muscle strength, and body composition. Additionally, the women reported improvements in their psychological health, including reduced stress, improved mood, and increased self-esteem. The findings of this study suggest that a 12-week training program can have positive effects on the physical and psychological health of sedentary, middle-aged women.

1. The first step is to identify the problem. This involves understanding the current situation and what needs to be changed.
