The Art and Science of Making the New Man in Early

20th-Century Russia Yvonne Howell,Nikolai Krementsov,2021-12-02 The idea that morally mentally and physically superior new men might replace the currently existing mankind has periodically seized the imagination of intellectuals leaders and reformers throughout history This volume offers a multidisciplinary investigation into how the new man was made in Russia and the early Soviet Union in the first third of the 20th century The traditional narrative of the Soviet new man as a creature forged by propaganda is challenged by the strikingly new and varied case studies presented here The book focuses on the interplay between the rapidly developing experimental life sciences such as biology medicine and psychology and countless cultural products ranging from film and fiction dolls and museum exhibits to pedagogical projects sculptures and exemplary agricultural fairs With contributions from scholars based in the United States Canada the UK Germany and Russia the picture that emerges is emphatically more complex contradictory and suggestive of strong parallels with other new man visions in Europe and elsewhere In contrast to previous interpretations that focused largely on the apparent disconnect between utopian new man rhetoric and the harsh realities of everyday life in the Soviet Union this volume brings to light the surprising historical trajectories of new man visions their often obscure origins acclaimed and forgotten champions unexpected and complicated results and mutual interrelations In short the volume is a timely examination of a recurring theme in modern history when dramatic advancements in science and technology conjoin with anxieties about the future to fuel dreams of a new and improved mankind

The Ethics of Human Gene Therapy

LeRoy Walters,Julie Gage Palmer,1997 The authors of this absorbing new book describe the science of gene therapy in terms easily accessible to the non specialist and focus on the controversial ethical and public policy issues surrounding human interventions in human heredity After a brief survey of the structure and functions of DNA genes and cells Walters and Palmer discuss three major types of potential genetic intervention somatic cell gene therapy germ line gene therapy and genetic enhancements They start with the current techniques of gene addition using non reproductive somatic cells in an effort to cure or treat disease Next they address the technical problems and moral issues facing attempts to prevent disease through genetically modifying early human embryos or sperm and egg cells These changes would be passed on to future generations Chapter 4 in many ways the most original part of this volume confronts the issue of employing genetic means to improve human abilities and appearance Depending on the techniques employed such enhancements could affect not only the individuals receiving the intervention but their offspring as well Three types of genetic enhancements are considered physical alterations to improve size reduce the need for sleep and decelerate aging intellectual enhancements of memory and general cognitive ability and moral enhancements for control of violently aggressive behavior The authors maintain that genetic modifications should be evaluated individually rather than be condemned in principle or as a group The final chapter summarizes the public review process that human gene therapy proposals have been undergoing in the United States since 1990 Five appendices providing technical background information along with a complete list of questions raised in the national public review process supplement the discussion
