What if, instead the balloon should not expand at all. The gas particles would still move faster. They would still exert what would happen if the gas in the balloon were not allowed to expand at all. Remember that faster gas motion means higher temperature and that the faster one is, the warmer it is.
