De la Reproducción del soporte a la edición del contenido. Protocolos de intervención digital sobre las imágenes en función del valor de sus uso. José Luís Maravall LLagaria, 2014-06-05 El continuo desarrollo de la tecnología digital en las últimas décadas y el establecimiento de lo que se ha convenido en llamar sociedad de la información han traído consigo la voluntad de democratizar y hacer más accesibles los distintos soportes del conocimiento Gracias al progreso tecnológico en el campo de las telecomunicaciones siendo Internet el máximo exponente de este proceso se están desarrollando distintas iniciativas con el objetivo de hacer públicos aquellos materiales bibliográficos y documentales con la capacidad común de transportar el conocimiento humano Estas iniciativas ofrecen de manera telemática la posibilidad de compartir los recursos intelectuales que hasta entonces permanecían aislados en sus correspondientes emplazamientos por lo que amplían la accesibilidad a los documentos por parte del conjunto de los usuarios En este contexto general de reconsideración del valor del acceso del usuario a las fuentes de información se podrán situar las iniciativas de digitalización desarrolladas a partir del material bibliográfico y documental en posesión de archivos y bibliotecas En este sentido se están evaluando las ventajas y los inconvenientes que supone la utilización de la tecnología digital respecto a la anterior tecnología basada en la microfilmación

de los documentos Ambas tecnologías comparten un objetivo principal que consiste en ofrecer a los usuarios la información contenida en los documentos sin recurrir a los originales colaborando a la preservación de los mismos A pesar de este objetivo común las diferentes características y limitaciones de estas dos tecnologías representan para los responsables de los documentos la problemática entre garantizar la conservación de su información o mejorar el acceso a la misma Como veremos en detalle más adelante la microfilmación sigue constituyendo una tecnología más estable y duradera por lo que resulta más adecuada para la preservación del contenido de los documentos La digitalización por otra parte permite el acceso a la información de una manera más cómoda y versátil a mayor número de usuarios
