Life & Times of Michael K J. M. Coetzee, 1985 Michael K a young South African becomes unwillingly and unwittingly involved in a war in South Africa after he loses his gardening job in Capetown and embarks on an odyssey to return his dying mother to her homeland Trauma, Resistance, Reconstruction in Post-1994 South African Writing Jaspal Kaur Singh, Rajendra Chetty, 2010 The re conceptualization of South Africa as a democracy in 1994 has influenced the production and reception of texts in this nation and around the globe The literature emerging after 1994 provides a vision for reconciling the fragmented past produced by the brutality of apartheid policies and consequently shifting social relations from a traumatized past to a reconstructed future The purpose of the essays in this anthology is to explore within the literary imagination and cultural production of a post apartheid nation and its people how the trauma and violence of the past are reconciled through textual strategies What role does memory play for the remembering subject working through the trauma of a violent past Père-versions of the Truth Sławomir Masłoń,2007

Secretary of the Invisible Mike Marais,2009 How do individuals who are part of a community respond to the stranger as a stranger i e without simply positioning this outsider in opposition to the community in which they are located How may individuals receive something unknown and therefore surprising into their world without compromising it by identifying it in the terms of that world In this study Mike Marais traces the various ways in which Coetzee s fiction from Dusklands through to Slow Man repeatedly poses such questions of hospitality It is shown that the form of ethical action staged in Coetzee s writing is grounded not in the individual's willed and rational achievement but in his or her invasion and possession by the strangeness of the stranger. This ethic of hospitality Marais argues has a strong aesthetic dimension for Coetzee: the writer is inspired to write by being acted upon by a force from beyond the phenomenal world. The writer is a secretary of the invisible. She or he is responsible to and for the invisible. Marais maintains that this understanding of writing as an involuntary response to that which exceeds history is evident from the first in Coetzee's fiction. In readings of the novels of the apartheid era, he traces this writer's rueful, ironic awareness of the limited, even incidental form of political engagement that may emanate from such an aesthetic. He then goes on to argue that if it is the writer's obligation to render visible the invisible, writing must be a task that can never be completed. What is more, such writing is thus bound to be iterative in form. With this in mind, he traces the structural similarities between Coetzee's writing of the apartheid period and his post-apartheid and Australian writing, arguing that the later texts are self-reflexively aware of their endlessly repetitive nature. These contentions are developed incrementally through close readings of the individual novels that focus on recurring metaphors of hospitality: visitor, the stranger, the house, the castaway, the invisible, the dream, and the child.

Life and Times of Michael K in the Light of Iqbalian Khudi Tasawar Ali, 2011 Abstract: This paper draws a parallel between Allama Mohammad Iqbal's concept of khudi and J. M. Coetzee's novel Life and Times of Michael K. Khudi means the recognition of self, the realization of full potential in an individual. A fully realized individual is a prerequisite for a healthy, peaceful society. The central theme in Life and Times of Michael K is the celebration and realization of such individuality. Coetzee depicts a subject-centred ethic of political system in this novel while urging the individual to rewrite his identity by soaring above and seeing through such ideologies as naturalness and rootedness. Both Iqbal and Coetzee agree upon the fact that only mentally free and spiritually strong individuals are capable of forming a peaceful society. Freedom comes by being able to carefully decipher the state's divisive practices and by developing the selfhood or personality known as khudi. In order to have relationships based on love and connectivity, individuals need to raise their consciousness of selfhood, khudi.

Walls and Cultural Spaces, 2025-10-23
This volume explores the material and symbolic meanings of walls and their manifestations in history, literature, cultural studies, music, and ecocriticism. The diverse and original ways in which this topic is treated testify to the volume's multidisciplinary scope.

Space and Identity in J.M. Coetzee's Life & Times of Michael K, 2022
Occupying colonial governments establish and maintain power through the demarcation and control of space, a process Sara Upstone terms overwriting. In Life Times of Michael K, Coetzee imagines the complication of establishing and maintaining a self-identity amid the strict control of space in post-apartheid wartime South Africa, and it is this conflict of identity which comprises the novel's subplot. The reader follows Michael K's odyssey over hundreds of miles in his quest to find the farm on which his mother was born and raised. His journey is repeatedly thwarted by state actors who enforce a strict control of movement through spaces designated and ordered by the South Africa government, reflecting how oppressive state power structures impose arbitrary constructs of space which disrupt pre existing spatial connotations within the same geography In this essay I employ a close reading of Coetzee s fourth novel and incorporate spatial theory self identity and place identity theory as well as preceding scholarly inquiry into the novel to argue that the influence of spatial contexts on the protagonist s struggle to form and maintain his self identity comprises the novel s central theme Age of Iron ; Life & Times of Michael K J.
