Memo For Physical Science February March 2015:

Sustainability in the Gulf Elie Azar, Mohamed Abdel Raouf, 2017-07-31 Sustainability is a topic of great interest today particularly for the Gulf Cooperation Council GCC countries which have witnessed very rapid economic and demographic growth over the past decade The observed growth has led to unsustainable consumption patterns of vital resources such as water energy and food highlighting the need for an urgent shift towards green growth and sustainable development strategies Sustainability in the Gulf covers the region's contemporary development challenges through the lens of the UN's Sustainable Development Goals SDGs which place sustainability at the centre of the solution to the current environmental economic and social imbalances facing GCC countries The book presents multiple analyses of Gulf specific sustainability topics examining the current status challenges and opportunities as well as identifying key lessons learned Innovative and practical policy recommendations are provided as well as new conceptual angles to the evolving academic debates on the post oil era in the Gulf Through chapters covering sector related studies as well as the socio economic dimensions of the sustainability paradigm this volume offers valuable insights into current research efforts made by the GCC states proposing a way forward based on lessons learned This is a valuable resource for students academics and researchers in the areas of Environmental Studies Political Economy and Economics of the GCC states

Colour and Light in the Ocean Victor Martinez-Vicente, Astrid Bracher, Didier Ramon, Shubha Sathyendranath, Tiit Kutser, 2020-03-26 CLEO publications in Frontiers in Marine Science Foreword Josef Aschbacher Director of ESA's Earth Observation Programmes Satellite data have drastically changed the view we have of the oceans Covering about 70% of Earth's surface oceans play a unique role for our planet and for our life but large areas remain unexplored and are difficult to reach Since the 1980s Earth orbiting satellites have helped to observe what is happening at the ocean surface Sensors like CZCS AVHRR SeaWiFS and MODIS provided the first ocean colour data from space Starting in 2002 ESA's Medium Resolution Imaging Spectrometer MERIS on board the environmental satellite Envisat provided detailed information on phytoplankton biomass and concentrations of other matter in the global oceans These satellite observations laid the groundwork for studying the marine environment and how it responds to climate change and the research community has since delivered information on the variability of marine ecosystems Part of this work is reflected in this stunning collection of peer reviewed publications presented at the workshop Colour and Light in the Ocean from Earth Observation CLEO held at ESA's ESRIN site in Frascati Italy on 6-8 September 2016 The event attracted more than 160 participants from all over the world including remote sensing experts marine ecosystem modelers in situ observers and users of Earth observation data Scientifically the meeting covered applications in climate studies over primary productivity and ocean dynamics to pools of carbon and phytoplankton diversity at global and regional scales It also demonstrated the potential of Earth observation and its contribution to modern oceanography Looking to the future new satellites developed by ESA under the coordination of the European Commission will further our scientific and operational observations of the seas With Sentinel 3A in orbit and its twin Sentinel 3B following in 2017 there is a new category of data available for operational oceanographic applications and climate studies for years to come These data are free and easy to access by anyone interested Looking at the role of oceans in our daily lives I am sure that this collection of scientific excellence will be valued by scientists of today and will inspire the next generation to carry these ideas into the future

On Non-Generic Finite Subgroups of Exceptional Algebraic Groups Alastair J. Litterick, 2018-05-29 The study of finite subgroups of a simple algebraic group G reduces in a sense to those which are almost simple If an almost simple subgroup of G has a socle which is not isomorphic to a group of Lie type in the underlying characteristic of G then the subgroup is called non generic This paper considers non generic subgroups of simple algebraic groups of exceptional type in arbitrary characteristic

Reactor Handbook: pt. A. Physics, edited by H. Soodak. pt. B. Shielding, edited by E.P. Blizard and L.S. Abbott, 1962 Leave It in the Ground John C. Berg, 2019-09-03 Employing scientific explanations and hard data this book shows why coal is such a problem how the pro coal forces got to be so powerful and how those forces might be defeated through political activism Coal provided the energy to build modern civilization This energy source raised standards of living multiplied the earth's population and enabled people in developed countries to enjoy leisure time Today we know that if we burn all the coal available climate change will continue to increase But the use of coal isn't purely an environmental issue political and economic forces are also at play This book examines the politics and environmental impact of coal production and distribution presenting a clear point of view that we must shift away from coal use backed by hard data and supplying specific prescriptions for opposing and regulating the coal industry John C Berg explains how ending the burning of coal and of oil and natural gas is a political problem rather than a technical one explodes the clean coal myth providing scientific documentation of how burning coal emits more greenhouse gases per unit of energy than any other fuel and describes how controlling coal use in the United States will also restore the possibility of a meaningful international climate agreement Additionally readers will understand the critical importance of activism from local to international in spurring government regulation to control the coal industry which can only be defeated politically
