- Does changing the outputs cause a sudden lift or cut?
 - Does the value ΔU (left hand side) rise dramatically? If the stress outputs only rise a little then there's nothing wrong with the outputs and the transient is not a problem.
- There is something wrong with the stress outputs while using it.
 - Please try to re-evaluated the results stress after saving it (if not saving the results)
 - Check the changing value of the outputs by pulling them out the changing box plot for all ΔU intervals or (if there are many) use the first interval to re-evaluated with the stress outputs.

- The wireless network always disconnects to make room often connected to the mobile device.
- The wireless network must remain in low power state (sleep).
- There is an interaction between the mobile device and the wireless network, in the wireless network is limited signal range. Phone is not near the wireless network will turn back in order to restore the continuous connectivity of the system, phone try to keep the wireless network and the mobile device in the same channel.

Fig. 1. The experimental design. The subjects were randomly assigned into two groups: the control group and the intervention group. The control group was given a standard health education program, while the intervention group was given a more comprehensive health education program. The subjects were then followed up for 12 months. The subjects were then divided into two groups: the control group and the intervention group. The control group was given a standard health education program, while the intervention group was given a more comprehensive health education program.
