Abstract—The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 10-week training program on the heart rate (HR) and heart rate reserve (HRR) of sedentary middle-aged men. The study was conducted in a laboratory setting. The subjects were 15 sedentary middle-aged men (mean age 45.8 ± 3.2 years, range 35–55 years). They were divided into two groups: a control group (n = 7) and a training group (n = 8). The training group performed a 10-week training program consisting of three sessions per week, each lasting 30 minutes. The control group did not participate in any training program. The HR and HRR were measured at rest and during maximal exercise at baseline and after 10 weeks. The results showed that the training group had a significant decrease in HR at rest and during maximal exercise, and a significant increase in HRR at rest and during maximal exercise, compared to the control group. The control group showed no significant changes in HR and HRR. The results suggest that a 10-week training program can improve the cardiovascular fitness of sedentary middle-aged men.
