Potential Landry Signe, 2020-04-07 Africa welcomes business investment and offers some of the world's highest returns and impacts. Africa has tremendous economic potential and offers rewarding opportunities for global businesses looking for new markets and long-term investments with favorable returns. Africa has been one of the world's fastest growing regions over the past decade and by 2030 will be home to nearly 1.7 billion people and an estimated 6.7 trillion worth of consumer and business spending. Increased political stability in recent years and improving regional integration are making market access easier and business expansion will generate jobs for women and youth who represent the vast majority of the population. Current economic growth and poverty alleviation efforts mean that more than 43 percent of the continent's people will reach middle or upper class status by 2030. Unlocking Africa's Business Potential examines business opportunities in the eight sectors with the highest potential returns on private investment: the same sectors that will foster economic growth and diversification, job creation and improved general welfare. These sectors include consumer markets, agriculture and agriprocessing, information and communication technology, manufacturing, oil and gas, tourism, banking and infrastructure and construction. The book's analysis of these sectors is based on case studies that identify specific opportunities for investment and growth along with long-term market projections to inform decision making. The book identifies potential risks to business and offers mitigation strategies. It also provides policymakers with solutions to attract new business investments including how to remove barriers to business and accelerate development of the private sector.

Engendering Democracy in Africa Niamh Gaynor, 2022-06-01 This book investigates women's political participation in Africa. Going beyond the formal institutions of electoral politics, it explores a range of spaces where everyday politics take place at national and at local levels. In recent years, there have been significant improvements in the number of women elected to parliament in Africa. However, there is little indication that this is translating into better developmental outcomes and indeed there is mounting evidence that it could in fact help to bolster some authoritarian regimes. Starting from the premise that politics is a far broader project than securing a seat in national or local legislatures alone, this book explores the opportunities for women's political participation across a number of informal spaces where women and men gather, organise and interact in a more regular and systematic manner. Combining insights from political science, sociology and feminist theory and drawing on detailed cases from the Congo, Kenya, Malawi, Nigeria and Rwanda, it examines how power in its multiple dimensions circulates across a range of everyday political spaces while drawing attention to the links between domestic gender inequalities and the global political economy. Inviting scholars, practitioners and activists to broaden their focus beyond formal electoral institutions if they want to support women to become more politically active, this book provides fresh insights into major issues at the heart of African studies, development studies, gender and development, democratisation and international relations.
