Abstract—The purpose of this study was to determine if there were differences in the prevalence of musculoskeletal disorders between two groups of female nurses working in different departments of a hospital. The subjects were divided into two groups based on their work environment: intensive care unit (ICU) and medical-surgical unit (MSU). Data were collected from a questionnaire distributed to all participants. The results showed that the prevalence of musculoskeletal disorders was higher among ICU nurses than MSU nurses. This finding suggests that the work environment may play a role in the development of musculoskeletal disorders.
