Parliament. House of Commons. Select Committee on Science and Technology,2014 The risks and benefits of participating in screening programmes for conditions and diseases like cancer are not consistently communicated by either the NHS or private health care providers the Science and Technology Committee has warned in a new report It is calling on the Government to ensure that a standardised process to produce screening information is introduced and that better communications training is provided to health care professionals A recently revised breast cancer screening leaflet for the 50 70 age group with its more explicit focus on helping women make an informed choice about whether screening is right for them marks a step in the right direction However the inquiry found that the principles followed to revise this leaflet have not been applied to the communications developed by other NHS screening programmes The Committee recommends that steps are immediately taken by the Government s advisor on screening the UK National Screening Committee UK NSC to devise and implement a standard process for producing information that facilitates informed choice It also recommends a clarification of what informed choice means for potential screening participants so that different screening programmes can be more effectively evaluated on their delivery of it MPs are also calling on the Office for National Statistics to validate the statistics presented in NHS screening information to resolve disagreement and confusion over their accuracy Screening Angela E. Raffle,Anne Mackie,J. A. Muir Gray,2019-06-06 Screening programmes involve the systematic offer of testing for populations or groups of apparently healthy people to identify individuals who may be at future risk of a particular medical condition or disease with the aim of offering intervention to reduce their risk For many years screening was practised without debate and without evidence but in the 1960s serious challenges were raised about many of the screening procedures then being practised Benefits and harms of screening must be measured in high quality trials and the benefits of screening must be weighed alongside the negative side effects Concerns were raised about potential and actual harm arising when people without a health problem received dangerous and unnecessary investigations and treatments as a result of routine screening tests Controversy raged and it took some 50 years to achieve widespread recognition that evidence based and quality assured programme delivery was essential coupled with provision of balanced informed to enable informed choice for potential participants Commercially motivated provision of poor quality and non evidence based screening tests is increasing and screening remains a highly contested topic that has relevance in all health systems including for the general
