developed up to the prototype stage at the end of World War II The Churchill is an interesting tank quite different from any other British tank of World War II built outside the normal process of British tanks and the Department of Tank Design It was built under the watchful eye of the Prime Minister after whom it was named by a firm with no previous experience of tank production Despite being condemned as unsuitable and more than once being scheduled to be replaced by a better design this never actually happened It remained in production and ultimately vindicated itself since although it was slow and noisy it was found to have superior climbing ability and thicker frontal armour than the vaunted German Tiger Its classification as an Infantry Tank has been extensively criticised although recently one or two authors notably Americans seem to have revised their views on this and even Field Marshal Montgomery who advocated a Universal Tank to fulfil all roles found the Churchill a useful tank on many occasions particularly considering its ability to absorb punishment

Modelling Churchills James Guld, Sean McConnell, Kristof Pulinckx, Roman Volchenkov, Chris Meddings, 2017-03 Churchill Tank 1941-1952 \(all models\) Nigel Montgomery, 2013-10-01 The Churchill tank has a strong case to be acclaimed the best British tank of World War 2 This is not to discount the achievements of the later Comet but this tank only arrived as the Rhine was being crossed in 1945 and saw limited action The Churchill tank slugged it out in all kinds of terrain and proved itself to be capable of absorbing an astonishing amount of punishment When hit it was less prone than the Sherman to catching fire immediately and it was certainly much better armored Although slower than its contemporary the Cromwell the Churchill's true role was as an Infantry tank to fight alongside soldiers on foot In this role it performed superbly This manual is based around the complete restoration in the UK of Churchill Tank Mk IV T31579 which was built in 1941 The Churchill Mk IV was an evolution of the Mk III in which the principal difference was the cast turret replacing the welded one on the Mk III The armament was either a 6 pounder or a 75mm gun Together with the Mk III the Churchill Mk IV was present in most actions in Italy and North West Europe and with the Mk III it was the mainstay for most Churchill tank equipped regiments after 1942
